Thomson, 2018-02-25 Excerpt from The Ordnance Department Procurement and Supply Procurement planning Plans for New Facilities Plans for Decentralized Procurement Contract Forms and Legal Restrictions Surveys of Industry Educational Orders and Production Studies Conclusion About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works      The Ordnance Department Harry Thomson, Lida Mayo, 2015-07-02 In cost and bulk the munitions manufactured by and for the Army's Ordnance Department during World War II exceeded the output of all the other technical services of the Army combined and in cost they rivaled that for the aircraft and ships with which the war was fought The process of getting these munitions to fighting forces all over the world of storing them until needed of keeping track of them and of keeping them in repair was almost as complicated as their manufacture In writing the story of these two main aspects of the Ordnance mission on the home front the authors have produced a record of enduring value for whatever the character of military procurement now and in the future the problems of producing and distributing military equipment on a very large scale remain much the same Since private industry and civilian labor inevitably are called upon to contribute enormously to the making of munitions on any large scale civilian as well as military readers should find much in this volume to instruct them Perhaps its greatest lesson is the long lead time required to get munitions into full production and therefore the need for calculating military requirements with the utmost accuracy possible It is imperative in this age of international tension and partial mobilization that all of the intricacies of military production be clearly understood if the nation is to get the maximum of economy as well as security in preparations for its defense      The Ordnance Department: Procurement and supply, by H.C.
