Order And Rebellion In Tribal Africa:

Order and Rebellion in Tribal Africa Max Gluckman, 1963 These essays are mainly concerned with the development of some of Max Gluckman's ideas about African politics. He regarded frequent rebellions to replace incumbents of political offices as against revolutions to alter the structure of offices as inherent in these politics. Later he connected this situation with modes of husbandry, problems of the devolution of power, types of weapons and the law of treason. He advanced to a general theory of ritual as well as to general propositions about the position of officials representing conflicting interests within a hierarchy typified by the African chief under colonial rule. Social anthropology defined operationally in terms of what social anthropologists have done in the last fifty years is the study and comparison of tribal societies and of small fields of social life with emphasis on the role of custom. When a social anthropologist's research leads him into any field which belongs to other disciplines, what line should he adopt? What use may he make of the results that other scholars have already achieved? Must he knowingly make naive assumptions concerning events which they have regarded as complex? In each of the fascinating essays which in turn form the core of this book: V. W. Turner's on symbols in Ndembu ritual; F. G. Bailey's on disputes which occurred in two Orissa villages; A. L. Epstein's on urban communities in Africa; T. Lupton's and S. Cunnison's on the relationship between behaviour in three Manchester workshops and certain events which happened outside; and W. Watson's on social mobility and social class in a coalmining Scottish burgh, several social anthropologists attempt to answer these questions by discussing the problems of method that they have encountered in their own recent research and in the searching discussion which follows. Ely Devons and Max Gluckman sum up the results. To analyze one first has to circumscribe one's field and then simplify within the area of circumscription. Both circumscription and simplification may involve procedures of absorbing, abridging and making naive assumptions. The contributors draw attention to the attempt to distinguish between psychical facts, emotions, thoughts etc. and psychological, which we believe should apply only to statements within the science of psychology and not to be used by the former. They similarly distinguish between social facts and sociological or social anthropological statements. Psychological and sociological are so well established in common parlance as adjectives to categorize facts that attempts to specialize them as hopeless. Max Gluckman, 1911-1975 was head of the Department of Social Anthropology and Sociology at the University of Manchester. He is well known for his many books and articles on the peoples of South and Central Africa and on social anthropology in general. He was a political activist and was strongly against the use of colonies. He directly took on social problems and cultural discrepancies such as colonialism with racism, urbanization and labor migration.

Global Ethnography Michael Burawoy, Joseph A. Blum, Sheba George, Zsuzsa Gille, Millie Thayer, 2000-10-01

In this follow up to the highly successful Ethnography Unbound, Michael Burawoy and nine colleagues break the bounds of conventional sociology to explore the mutual shaping of local struggles and global forces In contrast to the lofty debates between radical theorists these nine studies excavate the dynamics and histories of globalization by extending out from the concrete everyday world The authors were participant observers in diverse struggles over extending citizenship medicalizing breast cancer dumping toxic waste privatizing nursing homes the degradation of work the withdrawal of welfare rights and the elaboration of body politics From their insider vantage points they show how groups negotiate circumvent challenge and even re create the complex global web that entangles them Traversing continents and extending over three years this collaborative research developed its own distinctive method of grounded globalization to grasp the evaporation of traditional workplaces the dissolution of enclaved communities and the fluidity of identities Forged between the local and global these compelling essays make a powerful case for ethnography s insight into global dynamics Government in Wanggulam J.D. van der van der Ploeg,2013-12-21
