Rural Planning from an Environmental Systems Perspective Frank B. Golley, Juan Bellot, 2012-12-06 This book synthesizes knowledge from several fields that are crucial to sustainable rural development the physical environment biological and agricultural production rural sociology and economics It takes a systems perspective incorporating systems analysis landscape analysis and soil water and land planning Directed toward graduate students and professionals it provides a source of information and concepts for those concerned with land and water policies and practice It presents an integrated approach using practical and applicable models and methods and takes a middle position between an elementary conceptual approach to land and water management and a highly mathematically advanced treatise based exclusively on system modeling The book is based on almost twenty years of experience in teaching a course on rural planning and the environment the authors being specialists from universities research institutions and companies in Europe and North America

Socio-environmental System D. Nir, 2012-12-06 2 society would be a free anarchic society an without archos ruler a society in which each individual is responsible for the relationship between himself and the society By inner persuasion we must live by making the maximum contribution of our physical and mental assets combined with minimal charge against and exploitation of the society We must contribute to society as much as possible because directly and indirectly we enjoy the contributions of the global society in which we live and of which we are a part To achieve this goal we must know not only ourselves but also the society in which we live A society is not uniform It is composed of mosaics of people of varying characteristics structured in different patterns and groups the qualities of which we must know because upon them depends our own place in the society Were the world uniform of feature and society there would no place for regional geography But because the world varies in form and its societies are different study of the differentiation of the world's surface and the regional geography as the people who live on it is an important tool for understanding the society in which we live particularly when our goal is to live with it in harmony

Adam Ginsbert-Gebert, 1988 Managing Planet Earth Miguel A. Santos, 1990-07-19 Society cannot increase beyond its ability to acquire natural resources or to dispose safely of pollutants One need not be an ecologist or environmental scientist to understand the dangers implicit in an uncontrolled degradation of the environment Calculating how many people each individual nation should have and determining the means by which politically various populations will be controlled calls for difficult decisions This book provides a concrete easily understood and realistic analysis of the scientific and legal dimensions of environmental stability Miguel A Santos outlines the current international ecological crises and defines them as the most serious threat to international world order and ecological stability The book is divided into five sections beginning with an examination of the ecological characteristics of human population and a discussion of population policies in developing and developed nations This section is followed by the construction of an analytic framework for the interaction of society with the environment Further chapters provide an overview of natural resources and pollution and the criteria for determining the earth's carrying capacity for humans The final section considers the problems and prospects of international law and environmental protection Although written for ecologists environmental scientists demographers political scientists economists and lawyers this book is not limited to them Anyone interested in the relationship between the environment and society will find this book instructive and provocative Regional Planning and Rural Development ,1986 Papers presented at the National Symposium on Regional Planning and Rural Development Allahabad 1981 organized by Govind Ballabh Pant Social Science Institute Systems Approaches to Developing Countries International Federation of Operational Research Societies,1973 Developing countries Conference report on the application of systems analysis and systems design to development policy includes papers on systems approaches incl The use of computers to economic planning and resource allocation agricultural policy food policy pollution control urban planning transport policy etc and on international cooperation in technology transfer etc References and statistical tables Conference held in algiers 1973 may 28 to 31
