Emma Jane Austen, 2020-09-11 The real evils indeed of Emma's situation were the power of having rather too much her own way and a disposition to think a little too well of herself these were the disadvantages which threatened alloy to her many enjoyments The danger however was at present so unperceived that they did not by any means rank as misfortunes with her Sorrow came a gentle sorrow but not at all in the shape of any disagreeable consciousness Miss Taylor married It was Miss Taylor's loss which first brought grief It was on the wedding day of this beloved friend that Emma first sat in mournful thought of any continuance The wedding over and the bride people gone her father and herself were left to dine together with no prospect of a third to cheer a long evening Her father composed himself to sleep after dinner as usual and she had then only to sit and think of what she had lost The event had every promise of happiness for her friend Mr Weston was a man of unexceptionable character easy fortune suitable age and pleasant manners and there was some satisfaction in considering with what self denying generous friendship she had always wished and promoted the match but it was a black morning's work for her The want of Miss Taylor would be felt every hour of every day She recalled her past kindness the kindness the affection of sixteen years how she had taught and how she had played with her from five years old how she had devoted all her powers to attach and amuse her in health and how nursed her through the various illnesses of childhood A large debt of gratitude was owing here but the intercourse of the last seven years the equal footing and perfect unreserve which had soon followed Isabella's marriage on their being left to each other was yet a dearer tenderer recollection She had been a friend and companion such as few possessed intelligent well informed useful gentle knowing all the ways of the family interested in all its concerns and peculiarly interested in herself in every pleasure every scheme of hers one to whom she could speak every thought as it arose and who had such an affection for her as could never find fault How was she to bear the change It was true that her friend was going only half a mile from them but Emma was aware that great must be the difference between a Mrs Weston only half a mile from them and a Miss Taylor in the house and with all her advantages natural and domestic she was now in great danger of suffering from intellectual solitude She dearly loved her father but he was no companion for her He could not meet her in conversation rational or playful The evil of the actual disparity in their ages and Mr Woodhouse had not married early was much increased by his constitution and habits for having been a valetudinarian all his life without activity of mind or body he was a much older man in ways than in years and though everywhere beloved for the friendliness of his heart and his amiable temper his talents could not have recommended him at any time The English Literature Companion Julian Wolfreys, 2017-09-16 What does it mean to study English Literature Have can you navigate and get the most from your degree The English Literature Companion is your comprehensive introduction to and exploration of the discipline of English and Literary Studies It is your advisor on key decisions and your one stop reference source throughout the course It combines A wide ranging introduction to the nature breadth and key components of the study of English Literature Essays by experts in the field on key topics periods and critical approaches A glossary of critical terms and a chronology of literary history Guidance about study skills from using your time effectively to the practical mechanics of writing essays Extensive signposting to wider reading and further sources of information Advice on key decisions taken during a degree and on subsequent career direction and further study Giving you the foundation and resources you need for success in English Literature this book is essential pre course reading and will be an invaluable reference resource throughout your degree
