Mid Life Developmental And Clinical Issues:

Mid-life, Developmental and Clinical Issues William H. Norman, Thomas J. Scaramella, 1980 The contributors to this volume demonstrate that middle aged adulthood encompasses more than specific years biological changes or orchestrations of earlier adaptations. Rather professionals are now viewing the middle years as a period in the life cycle like other periods in which a person's past endowments and deficits as well as present opportunities and restraints all interact with consequences that influence changes in self perception and the boundary between self and the interpersonal world. With these ideas in mind the book is intended to serve two major purposes. The first purpose is to provide the reader with a survey of the accumulating literature on the social and personal factors that influence not only the alterations in the rhythm and timing of life events thus affecting perceptions of self and adaptational patterns but also the developing personality and future life prospects. The second purpose of this book is to alert the reader to those developmental challenges options and potential problematic areas that have important implications in the clinical setting. Each of the nine chapters that follow examines a particular area within the field of middle adulthood development. Each chapter can be read as an up to date and authoritative contribution in the area it covers.

Individuals as Producers of Their Development Richard M Lerner, Nancy A.

Busch-Rossnagel, 2013-09-03 Individuals as Producers of Their Development A Life Span Perspective provides an assessment of the usefulness of viewing the individual as an active contributor to his or her development. It extends the breadth of organism environment reciprocities beyond those involved with the child and family. On the one hand this extension involves a consideration of the role of evolutionary biological processes on the other it pertains to the broader ecology of human development the social network lying outside the family and the physical environmental contexts of development. Person context reciprocities linked to variables that may play their greatest role in the extrafamilial context are also considered. Variables such as physical attractiveness race and physical handicap are examples of those discussed in this regard. Finally because of the greater scope of the analysis a potentially greater data base is examined in a search for documentation of the presence and role of dynamic person context interactions.

Revising Herself : Women's Identity from College to Midlife

Ruthellen Josselson Professor of Psychology Towson State University, 1996-11-07 In 1972 Ruthellen Josselson was a young psychologist fascinated by the riddle of how a woman creates an identity and chooses one path over another in life particularly in the face of the nascent feminist movement which challenged as never before the traditional role models of earlier generations. Selecting at random thirty young women in their last year of college Josselson undertook a ground breaking study that would follow these women's personal odysseys over the next twenty two years from graduation to midlife. What she learned about the ways women reinvent themselves in an ever changing world is the subject of Revising Herself a myth shattering look at both a unique generation of American women on the front lines of wrenching social change and at the conflicts and compromises facing women today. With stunning candor and hard won insight the ordinary and anonymous women in Josselson's study reveal how much more complex and interesting real women's lives are than the one dimensional stereotypes often portrayed in the media. Dismissing a traditional stage theory of development as overly simplistic, Josselson identifies four trajectories that women take from adolescence to adulthood: Guardians are the good girls, high achieving and committed to fulfilling their family's expectations but rigid in outlook and resistant to change; Pathmakers are not afraid of risk or commitment, striving to balance their own needs with others; The often idealistic Searchers are overwhelmed by choice and unable to make commitments; while Drifters live only for the moment, avoiding choice and an exploration of identity. Reflecting the degree to which women take risks, make choices and form commitments, these paths form a foundation for adulthood but they also lead to surprises at midlife. Guardians seem strikingly able to cut loose from earlier traditional patterns while many Drifters have found themselves sometimes in quite traditional ways. And coming of age just as the feminist movement gathered momentum, the women in Josselson's study were the first to confront many contemporary issues not faced by their mothers or their mothers' mothers. How does an Irish Catholic contemplate an abortion? How does a woman whose parents believe education is wasted on a daughter find the will to apply to medical school? In examining these questions and others, Josselson shows that the forging of a woman's identity, whatever her path is, is ongoing, a balancing of the need for self assertion against the equally compelling need for relationships. Women create their identities along the seams of both competence and connection and continually revise what they have made. Allowing women to define themselves in their own terms, Revising Herself holds up a provocative mirror in which readers can reflect upon their own life choices. Whether a Guardian, Pathmaker, Searcher or Drifter, readers will recognize themselves in these women's experiences and gain new insight into how we construct our identities over a lifetime.

Women & Aging Helen Rippler Wheeler, 1997. Guide with more than two thousand bibliographic entries and cross references. It includes journal articles, book chapters, essays and doctoral dissertations as well as complete books.

Aging and Milieu Graham D. Rowles, Russell J. Ohta, 2013-09-17. Aging and Milieu: Environmental Perspectives on Growing Old is a collection of essays that presents insight into the area of aging environment research. The book focuses primarily on the physical, phenomenological, cultural, social and clinical environmental context of an old person. Part I explores alternative conceptions of aging and milieu. The second part discusses the old person environment transaction. Part III covers the social context of milieu or the notion of how social relationships mediate and condition the symbiotic relationships between the old person and the physical environment. Gerontologists, sociologists, psychologists, architects and urban planners will find this book interesting.

Developmental Cognitive Behavioral Therapy with Adults Janet M. Zarb, 2013-01-11. Developmental Cognitive Behavioral Therapy with Adults outlines a new cognitive approach that combines existing CBT theory and strategies with a lifespan developmental psychopathology perspective. The major focus is on the relationship between mastery of normative psycho-social developmental tasks and mental health. Primary targets for therapy are maladaptive developmental pathways that have significantly disrupted the client's ability to cope with normal adult tasks and challenges The book builds on standard cognitive therapy models and techniques while providing further assessment and therapy strategies to address patterns interfering with resolution of normative adult tasks and roles It introduces several new developmental assessment and therapy strategies designed to address client difficulties with normal adult developmental tasks and to identify longstanding maladaptive pathways maintaining these difficulties The book offers a variety of psycho social developmental task difficulties in occupational social and family functioning The clinical examples provide a deeper understanding of pathways to competence as well as pathways to deviance and the contrast between normal and atypical processes as they emerge at different developmental periods Narrative Development Michael G. W. Bamberg,1997 In this volume six researchers describe their very different ways of viewing and studying narrative The book will be illuminating to students and researchers in language and linguistics psychology and education
