Migrants, Urban Poverty, and Instability in Developing Nations Joan M. Nelson, 1974-01-01 Migrants, Urban Poverty, and Instability in Developing Countries Joan M. Nelson, 1969 Migrants, Urban Poverty, and Instability in Developing Nations J. G. Nelson, 1969 Internal Migration: a Quantitative Study of Rural-urban Migration in Colombia T. Paul Schultz, 1969 Colombia has with many other low income countries had to contend in the postwar period with an increasing rate of population growth due to the abrupt decline in death rates The most prominent manifestation of the population explosion has been massive rural urban migration As with the birth rate the migration rate has widespread economic and social consequences and the desing of policy measure to cope with migration and the pace of urbanization in Colombia requires a broad understanding of why migration takes place Author Urban Poverty ,1975 Growth, Structural Change and Regional Inequality in Malaysia Asan Ali Golam Hassan, 2017-11-30 Economic development in the long run is seen as a process of structural change that is affected by economic growth Malaysia is one of the middle income economies that are going through rapid structural change Since the mid 1980s it has changed to an industrially based economy with large scale export of electrical and electronic components However thirty years after Malaysia s re distributive policies have been exercised regional inequality still exists This book examines the nature and impact of regional policies in relation to the patterns of demographic and economic structural change and in relation to growth distribution and income disparities across regions in Peninsular Malaysia The book also explores the degree to which differences in regional manufacturing distribution and concentration have contributed to regional inequality It concludes with a number of recommendations for regional policies that will reduce this inequality Columbia University Conference on International Economic Development, New York Sessions at Columbia University - February 20-21, 1970 ,1970 Migrants, Urban Poverty, and Instability in Developing Nations Norman Edward Gronlund, 1969 The Indian Journal of Political Science ,1980 Vols 1 include the Association s Annual report 1939 Conflict, Insecurity and Mobility Ibrahim Sirkeci, Jeffrey H. Cohen, Pinar Yazgan, 2016 Theories and models of contemporary migration often revolves around neofunctional models They define migrants as rational actors who are focused on improving their well being which is enabled by access to opportunities that are not available in their origin communities and or countries Nevertheless initiation of migration is largely driven by difficulties discomfort disagreements tensions and conflicts at the origin while migration decision and destination choices are moderated by individual characteristics cultural and social capital as well as by the local national and international context In other words people do not move when they are satisfied and comfortable with what they have and where they are The book s scope covers marginalisation and gangs Kurds in Istanbul Border perception Development security and Frontex Kurdish Diaspora Perspectives on conflicts return of Kurdish villagers young migrants in Istanbul communal violence Military service migration nexus Internal Migration, Access to Information, and the

Use of Urban Resources in Sao Paulo, Brazil Daniel Joseph Hogan,1974      Work and Migration Karen Fog Olwig,Ninna Nyberg Sorensen,2003-08-27 Using case studies from those who have moved either transnationally or internally within their own country international contributors offer various definitions of what it means to make a living on the move

Migration, Development and Urban Food Security Crush, Jonathan,2016-11-25 Over the last decade two issues have risen to the top of the international development agenda Food Security Migration and Development Each has its own agency champions international gatherings national line ministries and voluminous bodies of research There is thus a massive institutional and substantive disconnect between these two development agendas The reasons are hard to understand since the connections between migration and food security seem so obvious Food security needs to be mainstreamed into the migration and development agenda and migration needs to be mainstreamed into the food security agenda Without this happening both agendas will proceed in ignorance of the other to the detriment of both The result will be a singular failure to understand and manage the crucial reciprocal relationship between migration and food security This paper aims to promote a conversation between food security and migration experts and policy makers with particular reference to the crisis of urban food security in Africa The empirical basis of the conversation is an AFSUN survey in 2008 and its findings on the differences between migrant and non migrant households in 11 cities in Southern Africa

Participatory Monitoring of Urban Poverty in Vietnam ,2012      Rural, Urban Migration in Tropical Africa Guy Hunter,1974      Rural-urban Migration in Colombia Rand Corporation,T. Paul Schultz,1970      Economics Selections: an International Bibliography ,1969

Meddelanden från Lunds universitets geografiska institution ,1975      The State of Food Insecurity in Maputo, Mozambique Raimundo, Ines,Pendleton, Wade,2016-10-17 Food insecurity is a fact of life for the vast majority of households across Maputo s poverty belt The Maputo urban food security survey done by AFSUN as part of its baseline survey of 11 Southern African cities found that households exist in a constant state of food insecurity manifested in a lack of access to sufficient affordable food poor dietary quality and undernutrition Income is meagre and only those households with access to wage income have any chance of holding food insecurity at bay With a vibrant informal food economy Maputo s poor are surrounded by fresh and processed food Food availability is therefore not the primary determinant of food insecurity in Maputo Certainly large scale food import from South Africa and further afield makes the market price of food inherently volatile But prices for the consumer are also driven down by the fact that there is intense competition among vendors on the streets and in the marketplaces The real cause of food insecurity is high urban unemployment and a lack of regular and decent paying work Among its recommendations AFSUN urges the city of Maputo to set up a food security strategy that is multisectoral and policy oriented and based on a better understanding of food flows into and within the city the operation of the city s informal food economy and the likely impacts of formal retailing for the food security of the urban poor      The Journal of Karnatak University Karnatak University,1976
