Migration and Mortality in Africa and the Atlantic World, 1700-1900 Philip D. Curtin, 2024-10-28 These papers explore the history of the tropical regions of the Atlantic basin sometimes focused on the Caribbean sometimes on Africa but always with a comparative dimension The Atlantic basin is central to most of these comparisons but they are a part of an even broader effort to capture the perspective of world history Some deal with the shores of the Atlantic in the framework of economic history but the author's concern is most particularly with the role of the environment in history especially the disease environment Disease was particularly important for migrants who moved from one disease environment to another In the tropical Atlantic disease was a crucial factor in the formation of the slave trade affecting both the involuntary passengers and those who came out from Europe to manage the trade

Medicine in a Multicultural Society Luis García-Ballester, 2024-12-11 The present collection by Professor García Ballester deals with medicine and science i.e. natural philosophy in the Spanish kingdoms of Castile and Aragon between the 13th and the 17th centuries It includes a new English version of a major study first published in Spanish While sharing much including Galenism which is the subject of a further collection as a dominant medical doctrine with other parts of medieval and Renaissance Europe Spain was unique in having a medical marketplace uniting Christian Jewish Muslim and converso practitioners The complex processes of cultural interchange that resulted form the main theme in this book Together these studies have thrown new light on problems of theory and practice perceptions of health and disease and the doctor patient relationship as well as on the social and legal settings where the healers physicians surgeons barbers and apothecaries of these different religious communities were at work

Migrants, Servants and Slaves Russell R. Menard, 2001 Written by one of the leading economic historians of British America the essays in Migrants servants and slaves several of which have achieved the status of minor classics address a series of topics of central importance to the field The central theme is that of the transition from a labor force dominated by English indentured servants to one composed largely of African slaves In the enquiry the author examines the changing composition of the servant population in the British North American colonies the determinants of the pace and volume of servant migration and the opportunities available to servants who completed their terms On the subject of slavery he looks at how the initial investments were financed and the ability of the slave population to reproduce itself A Day in the Life Peter N. Stearns, 2006 Explores the current state of scholarship on daily life offering students and teachers an overview of the hows and whys of the little and big things people did thought and felt throughout their lives and in different historical periods Bulletin of the History of Medicine American association for the history of medicine, Institute of the history of medicine (Baltimore, Md)., 2003 Greater Britain, 1516-1776 David Armitage, 2004 The articles and essays in this volume represent the results of a decade s work on British history as a set of interlocking national histories as a transnational history linked to the history of continental Europe and as an international history within the Atlantic world The Eighteenth-century Current Bibliography, 2001 American Book Publishing Record, 2001 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2002 Forthcoming Books Rose Army, 2001-06 Medizinhistorisches Journal, 2002 Mortality and Migration in the Modern World Ralph Shlomowitz, Lance Brennan, John McDonald, 1996 This is a collection of previously published essays on the mortality suffered by British convicts and free emigrants on the voyage to Australia and by Indian Chinese African and Pacific Islander indentured labourers on their voyages to a variety of destinations across the world The success of various administrative measures in reducing mortality at sea during the 19th century is documented and shown to have a bearing on current debates on the explanation of the 19th century mortality decline in western societies Mortality and Migration in the Modern World Ralph Shlomowitz, 2024-10-28 The term relocation cost has been coined by Philip Curtin to refer to the increased mortality associated with the migration of people from their childhood disease environments to new ones He and others have quantified this cost for a number of migrant populations notably Africans in the transatlantic slave trade and European troops posted overseas The papers in this volume extend this research agenda by quantifying and analyzing the mortality suffered by other migrant groups both on their voyage and after their arrival at their destination The first three studies deal with free and convict European migration to Australia the following ones with movements of indentured labour from the mid 19th to the present century Chinese African Pacific Islander and above all the migration of Indian labour across half of the globe The collection is introduced by a new essay setting out the historical context and significance of this research Death by Migration Philip D. Curtin, 1989-11-24 This book is a quantitative study of relocation costs among European soldiers in the tropics from 1815 to 1914 Migration and the Origins of the English Atlantic World Alison Games, 1999 England s seventeenth century colonial empire in North America and the Caribbean was created by migration The quickening pace of this essential migration is captured in the London port register of 1635 the largest extant port register for any single year in the colonial period and unique in its record of migration to America and to the European continent Alison Games analyzes the 7 500 people who traveled from London in that year recreating individual careers exploring colonial societies at a time of emerging viability and delineating a world sustained and defined by migration The colonial travelers were bound for the major regions of English settlement New England the Chesapeake the West Indies and Bermuda and included ministers governors soldiers planters merchants and members of some major colonial dynasties Winthrops Saltonstalls and Eliots Many of these passengers were indentured servants Games shows that however much they tried the travelers from London were unable to recreate England in their overseas outposts They dwelled in chaotic precarious and hybrid societies where New World exigencies overpowered the force of custom Patterns of repeat and return migration cemented these inchoate colonial outposts into a larger Atlantic community Together the migrants stories offer a new social history of the seventeenth century For the origins and integration of the English Atlantic world Games illustrates the primary importance of the first half of the seventeenth century Africa and Africans in the Making of the Atlantic World, 1400-1800 John Kelly Thornton, 1998-04-28 This edition contains a new chapter extending the story into the eighteenth century
