Population Studies: Key Issues and Contemporary Trends in Ghana Badasu, Delali Margaret, Kwankye, Stephen Owusu, 2014-09-01 The scope of Population Studies as a discipline has expanded beyond its traditional focus on the three components of population and their dynamics fertility mortality and migration It encompasses broader themes including reproductive health and rights gender and other social and cultural dimensions of population dynamics human development and health and climate change Population is central to development and its integration into the development planning of every country is critical This volume of the University of Ghana Readers by the Regional Institute for Population Studies RIPS provides multi disciplinary perspectives on the multi faceted nature of population studies today The volume is an essential resource on contemporary issues on population studies and offers a unique opportunity for students of population studies and others who are interested in the study of human populations to enhance their understanding of the ramifications of population dynamics on development It also has rich material on demographic research methods and provides tools for building the research capacity of academics and technocrats who are interested in population driven interventions advocacy and policy

The Methods and Uses of Anthropological Demography Alaka Malwade Basu, Peter Aaby, 1998-09-24 This volume takes stock of the current status of the comparatively new discipline of Anthropological Demography and discusses its major methods its main strengths and its chief limitations It includes contributions from both mainstream demographers and foremost anthropologists all stressing the necessity of a shared agenda for each discipline to progress successfully and avoid marginalization While the unique research and personal satisfaction afforded by participant observation is described the book also highlights the potential contribution to the understanding of demographic events of much more than the field methods of traditional anthropology In particular it stresses the insights possible from qualitative focus group interviews from longitudinal studies and from a greater interest in armchair anthropology in which demographers complement their quantitative findings with qualitative information and understanding gleaned from a careful reading of the anthropological literature in the form of both ethnographies and anthropological theories In addition it stresses the larger world of the ideal anthropological demographer a world that includes the cultural context of course but also takes into account the historical and political forces that condition so much individual behaviour But the book is also a critical venture It includes therefore considerable discussion of the common limits of the purely anthropological approach for understanding demographic events and processes especially from a larger policy perspective at the same time as it emphasizes the crucial role of the anthropological approach to designing policy that is potentially effective as well as socially and culturally sensitive It reiterates the often complementary role of anthropological demography and also discusses some specific questions in demographic research which it does not as yet seem to have the capacity to illuminate The book is aimed primarily at demographers wishing to broaden their research agenda and deepen their understanding of demographic behaviour but it also hopes to convert mainstream anthropologists to take a more active interest in demographic issues Both disciplines after all have a common intense interest in the kind of life and death issues that they can fruitfully explore together or by using one another's research methods Individuals and Families in Transition, 1989 Asian and Hispanic Immigrant Women in the Work Force Fung-Yea Huang, 2014-03-05 Data from the Current Population Survey were used in a unique analysis of migration and economic adaptation in a nationally representative sample of Asian and Hispanic immigrant women The study describes migration patterns and compares the labor market adaptation experiences of women who migrated with their families and women who migrated independently The book also examines the systematic differences in migration patterns by country of origin and how these differences relate to labor market performance The findings highlight the considerable impact of immigration policy on the economic adaptation of immigration women Wives who migrated before their husbands were more likely to be in the labor force especially when compared to wives migrating after their husbands In contrast wives who migrated with their husbands were not likely to participate in the labor force Interestingly Asian immigrant wives were more likely to migrate while married than were Hispanic immigrant wives Asian wives who migrated after their husbands earned substantially lower wages than their respective ethnic counterparts Ph D Dissertation Cornell University 1995 revised with new preface and index Complex Social Systems in Dynamic Environments Svetlana G. Maximova, 2023-06-29 This edited book considers social systems as self organizing structures that reproduce new structural elements endowed with certain functional connections The authors analyze innovative processes in social systems leading to the sustainable convergence of knowledge and the emergence of technologies that improve the level of material well being in society The book summarizes research results in the field of digitalization and reveals deep connections with social problems In addition the book presents a whole array of innovative research on social systems management and the application of knowledge and intelligence to the solution of social problems The contributing scholars and practitioners reflect on various types of social systems and assess the influence of disruptive factors from natural and coupled human natural environments discussing possible mechanisms for their neutralization Sustainable development of social systems is among the most important tasks facing the contemporary world The contributed book highlights challenges to the sustainability of social systems draws sociotechnical images of the future world order generated by the rapid development of intellectual technologies and critically analyzes promising concepts for more sustainable social future Among the discussed topics in the book are social governance digital economy technological landscapes social systems modeling and simulation cyber social systems knowledge based innovation systems complex processes in social systems institutional arrangements and other advancing research areas The high quality and original studies presented in the book appeal to those interested in broadening their perspectives on complexity science complex social systems research complex systems management advanced technological development in social systems etc Since the book is rich with well thought theories advanced research approaches and interdisciplinary research results it becomes a great source of new ideas and insights on complex social systems

African Women Immigrants in the United States J. Arthur, 2009-09-28 This title depicts how immigrant women use international migration as a strategy to challenge existing patriarchal hegemonies operative both in the United States and Africa It also weaves together the multidimensional strands of how African immigrant women shape and are shaped by the process of international migration

Migration, Environment and Climate Change Frank Laczko, Christine Aghazarm, 2009 Gradual and sudden environmental changes are resulting in substantial human movement and displacement and the scale of such flows both internal and cross border is expected to rise with unprecedented impacts on lives and livelihoods Despite the potential challenge there has been a lack of strategic thinking about this policy area partly due to a lack of data and empirical research on this topic Adequately planning for and managing environmentally induced migration will be critical for human security The papers in this volume were first presented at the Research Workshop on Migration and the Environment Developing a Global Research Agenda held in Munich Germany in April 2008 One of the key objectives on the Munich workshop was to address the need for more sound empirical research and identify priority areas of research for policy makers in the field of migration and the environment

Migration Dynamics Clara Helena Mulder, 1993 As society changes so do individual life courses This book reports the influence of changes in the economic domain the socio cultural domain and government policy in the life courses of people living in the Netherlands The data are derived from the statistics on internal migration for the period 1973 1989 and the Housing Demand Surveys conducted in 1981 1985 and 1989 The study comprises analyses of short versus long distance migration moves and their motives moves to and from the larger cities moves into home ownership and moves connected with leaving the parental home cohabitation and marriage These analyses make an important contribution to our understanding of migration dynamics The superiority of an approach featuring individual life course experience in addition to period and age over traditional Age Period Cohort approaches is also demonstrated

Persistent Poverty In Rural America Rural Sociological Society, 2019-05-28 A team of anthropologists economists geographers political scientists social workers and sociologists examine the leading explanations for why poverty persists in rural America Their findings discredit established theories such as the culture of poverty and suggest new explanations for rural poverty and new directions for antipoverty programs
