Immigration and Politics in the New Europe Gallya Lahav, 2004-04-22 With almost a quarter of the world's migrants Europe has been attempting to regulate migration and harmonize immigration policy at the European level The central dilemma exposed is how liberal democracies can reconcile the need to control the movement of people with the desire to promote open borders free markets and liberal standards Gallya Lahav's book traces ten years of public opinion and elite attitudes toward immigration cross nationally to show how and why increasing EU integration may not necessarily lead to more open immigration outcomes Empirical evidence reveals that support from both elite and public opinion has led to the adoption of restrictive immigration policies despite the requirements of open borders Unique in bringing together original data on European legislators and national elites longitudinal data on public opinion and institutional and policy analyses this 2004 study provides an important insight into the processes of European integration and globalization more broadly

Uncommon Alliances Natasa Kovacevic, 2018-03-14 Examines European Union's neocolonial sovereignty in cultural narratives of migration Uncommon Alliances Cultural Narratives of Migration in the New Europe takes a critical stance toward both assimilationist and multicultural imaginings of community in the European Union that occlude neocolonial relations of dependence and exclusion Bringing into conversation postcolonial and post communist migration narratives from Africa Asia and Eastern Europe it aims to capture the emergent shift from national to postnational European space Through its examination of cultural texts including works by Jamal Mahjoub Mike Phillips Laila Lalami Mahi Binebine Dubravka Ugresic and others this book traces EU neocolonial practices in relation to European history borders and guiding ideals of community which exclude various others from their symbolic imaginary The book deliberately moves the discussion away from social scientific approaches to humanities and offers a fresh intellectual framework for understanding multicultural identity in Europe Key FeaturesGoes beyond traditional frameworks of cultural analysis national ethnic or language based by focusing on narratives which take the European Union as a point of referenceShifts focus from narratives depicting interactions between different cultures to those imagining communities of solidarity based on common economic or historical marginalisation in the European UnionRevises postcolonial theory by arguing that the European Union exemplifies a new consensual regime of colonial governance Offers poststructuralist readings of migrant narratives to go beyond the more common multicultural approaches to such narrativesDevelops original perspectives on individual writers Jamal Mahjoub Mike Phillips Laila Lalami Mahi Binebine Dubravka Ugresic and others Helps reorient European Union studies dominated by social sciences to the humanities side

Migration in the New Europe East West Revisited responds to demand for a study on migration and policy developments in the light of European Union enlargement The innovative character of the book is its approach to the emerging European migration space The editors argue that the concept of a common European migration space will replace the traditional division into East and West because of two simultaneous processes The ongoing European Union enlargement and the creation of a common European Union immigration policy

the concepts of Europe and European identity through an examination of recent European films dealing with various aspects of globalization the refugee crisis labour migration the resurgence of nationalism and ethnic violence neoliberalism post colonialism with a particular attention to the figure of the migrant and the ways in which this figure challenges us to rethink Europe and its core Enlightenment values citizenship justice ethics liberty tolerance and hospitality in a post national context of ephemerality volatility and contingency that finds people desperately looking for firmer markers of identity The book argues that a compelling case can be made for re orienting the study of contemporary European cinema around the figure of the migrant viewed both as a symbolic figure representing post national citizenship urbanization the gap between ethics and justice and as a figure occupying an increasingly central place in European cinema in general rather than only in what is usually called migrant and diasporic cinema By drawing attention to the structural and affective affinities between the experience of migrants and non migrants Europeans and non Europeans Trifonova shows that it is becoming increasingly difficult to separate stories about migration from stories about life under neoliberalism in general

The New Europe

Robert William Seton-Watson,1917 Being and Becoming European in Poland Marysia H. Galbraith,2014-06-01

Overthrowing communism in 1989 and joining the European Union in 2004 the Polish people hold loyalties to region country and now continent even as the definition of what it means to be European remains unclear Paying particular attention to those who came of age in the earliest years of the neoliberal and democratic transformations this book uses the life story narratives of rural and urban southern Poles to reveal how being European is considered a fundamental component of being Polish while participants are simultaneously becoming European Ultimately this study demonstrates how the EU is regarded as both an idea and an instrument and how ordinary citizens make choices that influence the shape of European identity and the legitimacy of its institutions
