From Steam to Screen Rebecca Harrison, 2018-03-22 In late nineteenth and early twentieth century Britain there was widespread fascination with the technological transformations wrought by modernity. Films newspapers and literature told astonishing stories about technology such as locomotives breaking speed records and moving images seemingly springing into life onscreen. And whether in films about train travel or in newspaper articles about movie theatres on trains stories about the convergence of the railway and cinema were especially prominent. Together the two technologies radically transformed how people interacted with the world around them and became crucial to how British media reflected the nation's modernity and changing role within the empire. Rebecca Harrison draws on archival sources and an extensive corpus of films to trace the intertwined histories of the train and the screen for the first time. In doing so she presents a new and illuminating material and cultural history of the period and demonstrates the myriad ways railways and cinema coalesced to transform the population's everyday life. With examples taken from more than 240 newsreels and 40 feature length films, From Steam to Screen is essential reading for students and researchers working on film studies and British history at the turn of the century and beyond

South Korean Film Hyon Joo Yoo, 2021-01-01 South Korean Film Critical and Primary

Sources is an essential three volume reference collection representing three distinct phases in the development of South Korean national cinema foregrounding how epochal characteristics inform the way in which the national cinema represents the penetrating thematic concern of auteurship, genre, spectatorship, gender and nation as well as the way in which these themes find expression in distinct visual styles and forms

Hollywood Fantasies of Miscegenation Susan

Courtney, 2021-12-07 Hollywood Fantasies of Miscegenation analyzes white fantasies of interracial desire in the history of popular American film. From the first interracial screen kiss of 1903 through the Production Code's nearly thirty year ban on depictions of miscegenation to the contemplation of mixed marriage in Guess Who's Coming to Dinner 1967 this book demonstrates a long popular yet underexamined record of cultural fantasy at the movies. With ambitious new readings of well known films like D W Griffith's 1915 epic The Birth of a Nation and of key forgotten films and censorship documents Susan Courtney argues that dominant fantasies of miscegenation have had a profound impact on the form and content of American cinema. What does it mean Courtney asks that the image of the black rapist became a virtual cliché while the sexual exploitation of black women by white men under slavery was perpetually repressed? What has this popular film legacy invited spectators to remember and forget? How has it shaped our conceptions of and relationships to race and gender? Richly illustrated with more than 140 images Hollywood Fantasies of Miscegenation carefully attends to cinematic detail revising theories of identity and spectatorship as it expands critical histories of race sex and film. Courtney's new research on the Production Code's miscegenation clause also makes an important contribution inviting us to consider how that clause was routinely interpreted and applied and with what effects.

Railway Travel in Modern Theatre Kyle Gillette, 2014-05-22

Railway travel has had a significant influence on modern theatre's sense of space and time. Early in the 20th century breakthroughs ranging from F T Marinetti's futurist manifestos to epic theatre's use of the treadmill explored the mechanical rhythms and perceptual effects of railway travel to investigate history technology and motion. After World War II some playwrights and auteur directors from Armand Gatti to Robert Wilson to Amiri Baraka looked to locomotion not as a radically new space and time but as a reminder of obsolescence complicity in the Holocaust and its role in uprooting people from their communities. By analyzing theatrical representations of railway travel this book argues that modern theatre's perceptual historical and social productions of space and time were stretched by theatre's attempts to stage the locomotive.

Reading the Seen Sara Hackenberg, 2004 Cinema and Landscape Graeme Harper, Jonathan R. Rayner, 2010

The notion of landscape is a complex one but it has been central to the art and artistry of the cinema. After all what is the French New Wave without Paris? What are the films of Sidney Lumet Woody Allen Martin Scorsese and Spike Lee without New York? Cinema and Landscape frames contemporary film landscapes across the world in an exploration of screen aesthetics and national ideology film form and cultural geography cinematic representation and the human environment. Written by well known cinema scholars this volume both extends the existing field of film studies and stakes claims to overlapping contested territories in the humanities and social sciences.
