Paramo An Andean Ecosystem Under Human Influence:

Paramo Henrik Balslev,James L. Luteyn,1992 This volume developed from Papers given at a discussion meeting in June of 1991 describes the unique flora and fauna of paramo a high altitude Andean grassland ecosystem The paramos are a rich botanically diverse range of habitats of vital importance both to the local economy and as a major catchment area for water for many of the region's cities and great rivers This book focuses on the activities of man in grazing cutting buring and cultivating this fragile region Important new research from Mexico Costa Rica Venezuela Colombia Ecuador and Peru is brought together for the first time to provide an essential reference for both those interested in Central and South American ecology and the conservation and proper use of those ecosystems a little studied habitat of growing importance Describes a rich and fragile environment under human threat First book devoted to this habitat

Imperfect Balance David L. Lentz,2000-09-26 We often envision the New World before the arrival of the Europeans as a land of pristine natural beauty and undisturbed environments However David Lentz offers an alternative view by detailing the impact of native cultures on these ecosystems prior to their contact with Europeans Drawing on a wide range of experts from the fields of paleoclimatology historical ecology paleontology botany geology conservation science and resource management this book unlocks the secret of how the Western Hemisphere's indigenous inhabitants influenced and transformed their natural environment A rare combination of collaborators uncovers the changes that took place in North America Mexico Central America the Andes and Amazonia Each section of the book has been comprehensively arranged so that a botanical description of the natural vegetation of the region is coupled with a set of case studies outlining local human influences From modifications of vegetation to changes in soil wildlife microclimate hydrology and the land surface itself this collection addresses one of the great issues of our time the human modification of the earth

Mountain Biodiversity Ch. Korner,E.M. Spehn,2019-09-18 Originally published in 2002 Mountain Biodiversity deals with the biological richness function and change of mountain environments The book was birthed from the first global conference on mountain biodiversity and was a contribution to the International Year of

Mountains in 2002 The book examines biological diversity as essential for the integrity of mountain ecosystems and argues that this dependency is likely to increase as environmental climates and social conditions change This book seeks to examine the biological riches of all major mountain ranges from around the world and using existing knowledge on mountain biodiversity examines a broad range of research in diversity including that of plants animals human and bacterial diversity

The book also examines climate change and mountain biodiversity as well as land use and conservation

the World's Biomes, 2020-06-26 Encyclopedia of the World's Biomes is a unique five volume reference that provides a global synthesis of biomes including the latest science. All of the book's chapters follow a common thematic order that spans biodiversity importance, principal anthropogenic stressors and trends, changing climatic conditions and conservation strategies for maintaining biomes in an increasingly human dominated world. This work is a one stop shop that gives users access to up to date informative articles that go deeper in content than any currently available publication. Offers students and researchers a one stop shop for information currently only available in scattered or non technical sources. Authored and edited by top scientists in the field. Concisely written to guide the reader through the topic. Includes meaningful illustrations and suggests further reading for those needing more specific information. Fire in the South American Ecosystems

Alessandra Fidelis, Vânia R. Pivello, 2025-07-01 The incidence of anthropogenic fires in South America has increased lately and fire effects on the biodiversity and ecosystem services are of great concern. On the other hand, natural fires have been present in the continent for thousands of years, acting as an evolutionary driver of vegetation and fauna. Therefore, several ecosystems in South America are fire-prone due to their evolutionary history, while those that have not evolved under frequent fires are fire-sensitive. At the same time, as humans increase fire frequency in some environments, they try to banish fire from others, and such anthropogenic fire regimes have enormous consequences for biota, ecosystem services, and the environment. This book will address the various South American ecosystems that benefit from the presence of fire but also those that are harmed by fire. The effects of fire on plant and animal biodiversity of the main South American ecosystems will be presented and discussed, considering current trends in climate and land use change, bringing understanding about when and how fire should or should not be used to benefit nature and humans. Options for fire planning and management will be highlighted, especially considering the reduction of wildfire risk and the conservation of biodiversity and natural resources. This broad comprehension of the fire issue in South America will support wise decisions by environmental analysts, conservation managers, and public policy makers. Nature's Geography Karl S. Zimmerer, Kenneth R. Young, 1998

Developing countries in Africa, Asia, and Latin America are increasingly influenced by human-induced environmental changes. It is crucial that sustainable development be based on insights into these expanding processes, conservation as well as deterioration. Nature's Geography offers a new perspective on the geographical nature of these changes. The book reveals how human-environment relations must be understood at multiple scales and time frames. Editors Karl S. Zimmerer and Kenneth R. Young have forged an exciting group of case studies from distinguished geographers focusing on high mountains, tropical forests, and lowlands as well as humid and arid semiarid landscapes. Each chapter analyzes the implications for meshing environmental protection and sound resource use with development. The case studies evaluate three topics: spatial habitat fragmentation and forest dynamics, disturbances in mountain ecosystems, and the major activities of settled areas, chiefly farming, livestock raising, and forestry. Included are analyses of interactions involving wildlife such as primates and wild pandas assessment of fire impacts and road building long term forest management as well as recent techniques and the role of environmental variation and ecosystem properties in agriculture and rangeland Nature's Geography demonstrates the vital importance of advancing a new approach to geography This definitive study of landscape change and environmental dynamics will have wide appeal for those interested in geography ecology environmental studies conservation biology and development studies The Ecology of Volcán Chiles Paul M.
