adulthood in their 30s and 40s and some of them are becoming parents They are the daughters and sons of a world that was suddenly turned upside down Many of their parents lost their jobs when the Soviet Union collapsed and had to find new ones right away They are the children of a great new world raised by television and life in the courtyard These are the children of the promise of freedom who felt they just needed to make an effort and the great new world would be at their feet They are tough hard working maximalists who still know how to make jam enjoy picking mushrooms keep a drawer full of used plastic bags and many other deep rooted zero waste habits They feel at home in the modern world yet do not take its comforts and luxuries for granted What happens when they become parents Parenthood has gradually taught them some of life's most difficult lessons to err to lose to give in with dignity to accept their own and other people's vulnerabilities and to be patient with themselves and others Parenting for this special generation is a path to empathy for others as well as for their own kids but above all it is self acceptance This skill makes them a new and bold Central and Eastern European generation The Children of the Nineties Become Parents is for Everyone who was born and raised in the post Socialist 1990s Everyone who wants to understand Central and East Europeans better Everyone interested in the cultural specificity of parenting in different regions of the world Everyone interested in the parenting experiences and stories of the millennials
