A Child Becomes a Reader Bonnie B. Armbruster, 2006 Parents and Literacy, 1995 Parents Make the Difference

Susan Voorhees, 2014-05-14 Reading to your children has been recommended to parents of young children for decades by literacy experts. The act of shared book reading can promote academic language and literacy development; this is grounded in research. Not all shared book reading, however, is equally effective. In Parents Make the Difference: Nourishing Literacy Development through Shared Book Reading, Susan Voorhees guides parents to conduct enjoyable and productive book reading interactions with their young children. Parents will be informed about language and literacy learning in the early years and how to best engage in before, during, and after shared book reading activities. While this book was written as an invitation to parents, teachers will also find it to be informative in guiding them to establish a supportive climate for sound developmentally appropriate literacy teaching practices. It is the responsibility of all stakeholders to nourish the literacy development of young children as they naturally move toward learning to read and become lovers of reading.

Children and Parents Enjoying Reading Peter Branston, Mark Provis, 2025-08-05 With the introduction of the Literacy Hour in 1998, the case for harnessing parental involvement in promoting children's literacy was stronger than ever. Originally published in 1999, this book offered a detailed and practical approach based on three key concepts: keeping the child in the driving seat, continuing support from the school to the parents, and daily reading at home. It is presented in an accessible manner and offers practical advice to teachers in running and evaluating a scheme. It also gives parents a chance to think about the nature of their involvement at word, sentence, and text levels, introducing them to the framework of the National Literacy Strategy. Good reading skills are essential for access to the wider curriculum; yet above all, reading is fun. This book helped teachers, parents, and children to work together to make reading at home more enjoyable. It was also to help ensure that children achieved the standards of literacy expected for their age by 2002. Today, it can still be used to help children learn to read.

Partnering with Parents Mary Schreiber, 2019-04-01 Caregiver involvement is key to a child's reading success story, and libraries are in the perfect position to provide the guidance needed for parents and caregivers to embrace their role as their children's first and most enduring teachers. Libraries offer many programs and services for children, but sometimes caregivers are left out of the equation, especially once children start school. Nevertheless, parents and caregivers are an integral part of literacy development, and libraries are a great place for them to witness modeling practices and participate in engaging family programs that encourage early literacy. Mary Schreiber combines personal experience and professional research with the programming expertise of youth librarians from across the country in this guide for libraries looking to make an even greater impact on the level of literacy attained by the children they serve. In Partnering with Parents, readers will find a wealth of information on how to talk to caregivers about the different stages of a child's reading life what books to recommend to excite both caregivers and children about reading and ways to encourage parent and caregiver participation in library programming with additional information on working with and providing programming for diverse families Whether you are a veteran in the profession or brand new to working with families you will find something in this book that will help you to make your library a more integral part of the education community
