Participatory Learning Religious Education In A Globalizing Society:

Participatory Learning Chris A. M. Hermans,2003-01-01 Annotation Hermans professor of identity of Catholic schools and religious education Catholic U of Nijmegen the Netherlands analyzes religious education in the context of globalization as a cultural phenomenon a phenomenon characterized by processes of rationalization fragmentation and transformation He explores the changing nature of tradition in terms of Christian concepts of transcendence and immanence as it relates to education After attempting to define the characteristics of religion as experience language and practice he proposes a concept of religious instruction based on participation Participatory learning is defined as developmental social mediated and meaningful learning Annotation c 2003 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews.com International Handbook of Inter-religious Education Kath Engebretson,Marian de Souza,Gloria Durka,Liam Gearon,2010-08-17 This Handbook is based on the conviction of its editors and contributing authors that understanding and acceptance of as well as collaboration between religions has essential educational value The development of this Handbook rests on the f ther assumption that interreligious education has an important role in elucidating the global demand for human rights justice and peace Interreligious education reveals that the creeds and holy books of the world s religions teach about sp itual systems that reject violence and the individualistic pursuit of economic and political gain and call their followers to compassion for every human being It also seeks to lead students to an awareness that the followers of religions across the world need to be and to grow in dialogical relationships of respect and understa ing An essential aim of interreligious education is the promotion of understanding and engagement between people of different religions and therefore it has great potential to contribute to the common good of the global community Interreligious education has grown from the interfaith movement whose beg ning is usually identi ed with the World Parliament of Religions held in Chicago in 1893 This was the rst time in history that leaders of the eastern and we ern religions had come together for dialogue and to consider working together for global unity

Educating Religious Education Teachers Jenny Berglund,Bert Roebben,Peter Schreiner,Friedrich Schweitzer,2023-07-10 International knowledge transfer in religious education RE is still a fairly new topic Many scholars in the field consider this discussion of prime importance for the future of both the academic discipline of religious education and the related school subject RE This book continues this discussion and specifies it in the direction of teacher education Its focus is on the challenges that teacher students and their trainers are facing in the light of RE in a pluralized and detraditionalized society The impact of these challenges on RE research is obvious However international exchange of research results for purposes of comparison and mutual enrichment is still rare This book provides insights that can encourage and facilitate this exchange The Routledge International Handbook of Education, Religion and Values James Arthur,Terence Lovat,2013-08-21 The academic fields of religion and values have become the focus of renewed interest in contemporary thinking about human activity and its motivations The Routledge International Handbook of Education Religion and Values explores and expands upon a range of international research related to this revival. The book provides an authoritative overview of global issues in religion and values surveying the state of the academic area in contributions covering a wide range of topics. It includes emerging controversial and cutting edge contributions as well as investigations into more established areas. International authorities Arthur and Lovat have brought together experts from across the world to examine the complexity of the field of study. The handbook is organised around four key topics which focus on both the importance of religion and values as broad fields of human enquiry as well as in their application to education, inter agency work and cross cultural endeavours. The Conceptual World of Religion and Values, Religion and Values in Education, Religion and Values in Inter agency Work, Religion and Values in Cross cultural Work. Towards Dialogue San van Eersel, Encyclopedia of Christian Education George Thomas Kurian, Mark A. Lamport, 2015-05-07

Christianity regards teaching as one of the most foundational and critically sustaining ministries of the Church. As a result Christian education remains one of the largest and oldest continuously functioning educational systems in the world comprising both formal day schools and higher education institutions as well as informal church study groups and parachurch ministries in more than 140 countries. In The Encyclopedia of Christian Education contributors explore the many facets of Christian education in terms of its impact on curriculum, literacy, teacher training outcomes and professional standards. This encyclopedia is the first reference work devoted exclusively to chronicling the unique history of Christian education across the globe illustrating how Christian educators pioneered such educational institutions and reforms as universal literacy, home schooling, Sunday schools, women's education, graded schools, compulsory education of the deaf and blind and kindergarten. With an editorial advisory board of more than 30 distinguished scholars and five consulting editors, The Encyclopedia of Christian Education contains more than 1 200 entries by 400 contributors from 75 countries. These volumes covers a vast range of topics from Christian education History spanning from the church's founding through the Middle Ages to the modern day, Denominational and institutional profiles, Intellectual traditions in Christian education, Biblical and theological frameworks, curricula, missions, adolescent and higher education, theological training and Christian pedagogy. Biographies of distinguished Christian educators. The Book Review Digest, 2005 Interreligious Learning Didier Pollefeyt, 2007

The growth of secularisation, pluralism and globalisation have placed the West's traditional monoreligious education under pressure. Christianity no longer possesses a privileged position in Western Europe. Since the 1970s a number of scholars have been trying to formulate an answer to this question of multireligiosity by developing a multireligious concept of religious education. As both a critique on and alternative for the multireligious model, scholars in the 1990s developed the interreligious model of religious education. This approach distinguishes itself from monoreligious pedagogy through acknowledging plurality among the pupils as both a part of departure and as a possible end result of religious education. Moreover, it openly approaches the plurality of religions and worldviews as a learning opportunity. Religious education thus becomes a place of encounter and dialogue between different religious convictions. Interreligious learning further distinguishes itself from the multireligious model by overcoming a purely objective representation of the multitude of religions. In the interreligious model, students are not only informed but are introduced to the cognitive and value commitments underlying the different religions, giving them the opportunity to enrich and develop their own personal religious identity. The teacher takes an explicit and particular religious Christian standpoint but also tries to bring in other committed religious and philosophical voices. The interreligious model aims to teach students that holding a proper religious identity while having an openness to the religious other is not necessarily self-contradictory. What is more, that authentic religiosity is able to welcome the other in his/her vulnerability and strength as a witness to God. In this volume, scholars from various disciplines (theology, pedagogy, psychology, and ethics) and from different religious backgrounds (Jews, Christians, and Muslims) face up to a total of ten challenges related to interreligious learning. Challenges that may act as obstacles to the acceptance of this possible new paradigm for religious education.

Thompson, 1988 Creating a Learning Society? Stephen Gorard, Gareth Rees, 2002 This book presents a highly innovative study of participation in lifelong learning and the problems which need to be overcome if lifelong learning policies are to be successful. It provides a systematic analysis based on innovative empirical research of the social and economic realities which actually determine patterns of participation in lifelong learning. It shows what the factors are that shape people's participation or their decision not to participate. It offers new insights into the processes of lifelong learning which have important implications for the development of more effective policies. create a more equal society Science Education and Information Transfer Charles Alfred Taylor, Charles Taylor, 1987 It is said that we live in an information society and that there has been an information explosion during the present century. Indeed we live in an age when the storage transmission retrieval and the creation of information by electronic means has suddenly become commonplace. Clearly our educational system must take all this into account and adjust both to the possible use of microcomputers in teaching and to the preparation of students to take their place in the modern world of high technology. This volume stresses that if our science and technology education is really to serve future human needs we must ensure that the technique of information transfer chosen is appropriate to the age and experience of the receivers appropriate to the subject matter appropriate to the abilities and skills of the teacher appropriate to the financial circumstances appropriate to the cultural background of the region and appropriately free from distortions and confusions.
