Searching for a Caregiver, 2008 The time is well past for the American people especially those that deal with our school aged children on a day to day basis to see what is happening to our children and by extension to our society If public education is to become truly effective in this time of alienation both of race and class then a more caring nurturing and trusting approach to the profession of educational administration must be encouraged and engendered The purpose of this study is to examine the middle school administrator as a caregiver by examining the perceptions of the role by teachers and the principal This study focused on the perceptions of the principal as a caregiver in a selected East Tennessee school This exploratory descriptive case study included thematic development and verification based on data obtained through qualitative means interviews observations and document analysis The research questions posed at the beginning of this study include 1 How does this East Tennessee middle school principal respond to the developmental needs of middle school students How does this East Tennessee middle school principal respond to the developmental needs of the teachers who support learning for middle school students and 3 How does this East Tennessee middle school principal respond to the developmental needs of the middle school as an innovating entity A theoretical framework based on the work of Brown and Anfara 2002 and Anfara Roney Smarkola Ducette and Gross 2006 was used to focus the study's design and the data collection and analysis and the reporting of the findings. Subsequently the conclusions that were developed in this study describe the perceptions of the role of the caring middle school principal. The first major conclusion is that the developmentally responsive middle school principal responds to students and staff with care. The second conclusion is that the developmentally responsive middle school principal actively practices caring leadership. The final conclusion affirms that the developmentally responsive middle school principal uses the team concept to develop in staff and students a sense of ownership of the school and its programs.

The Principal Who Made School the Best Part of Each Student's Day

Joyce Stewart, 2020-11-24

Becoming a School Principal Sarah E. Fiarman, 2019-01-02

The principal's role is increasingly understood as a critical lever for school improvement. Yet the job can be a solitary one offering few opportunities to reflect with colleagues. What does it take to manage the work of continuous improvement to push staff members constantly to operate outside their comfort zones? What dilemmas and challenges must principals confront? How can school leaders learn from their mistakes and move forward? In Becoming a School Principal Sarah E. Fiarman describes her first few years as a school principal committed to enacting a powerful vision of leading and learning. Drawing thoughtfully on the literature of school reform and change leadership, Fiarman discusses a wide range of topics including empowering teachers, building trust, addressing racial and economic inequities, and supporting a culture of continuous learning as well as thornier issues such as learning to use authority skillfully, dealing with resistance, and managing supervision and evaluation. The book addresses common challenges and highlights missteps as well as successes. A contributing author to several leading books on school reform and instructional improvement, Fiarman engages readers in a lively, frank, and revealing conversation about building the vision and capacity to provide effective instruction for all students and the intensely personal process of learning to lead.

From the Desk of the Middle School Principal Kathleen Marie Brown, Vincent A. Anfara, 2002

Brown, Kathleen Marie, and Anfara, Vincent A. From the Desk of the Middle School Principal. Chapel Hill, NC: University of North Carolina Press, 2002.

U of North Carolina Chapel Hill and Anfara educational leadership U of Tennessee Knoxville examine education at the middle years level from the principal's perspective, spotlighting the principal's role in school reform and improvement based on the belief that schools should be responsive to the developmental needs of their students. Centered on a study of 98 principals in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and North Carolina, seven chapters explore the strategies used by principals in their responsiveness to students, to faculty and staff, and to their schools and communities. For aspiring and practicing middle school principals, board members, teachers, and parents.
