Migrant Family:

Migrant Families John N. Webb, Malcolm Brown, 1938      Gender, Generations and the Family in International Migration Albert Kraller, Camille Schmoll, Eleonore Kofman, Martin Kohli, 2025-10-01 Family related migration is moving to the centre of political debates on migration integration and multiculturalism in Europe It is also more and more leading to lively academic interest in the family dimensions of international migration At the same time strands of research on family migrations and migrant families remain separate from and sometimes ignorant of each other This volume seeks to bridge the disciplinary divides Fifteen chapters come up with a number of common themes Collectively the authors address the need to better understand the diversity of family related migration and its resulting family forms and practices to question if not counter simplistic assumptions about migrant families in public discourses to study family migration from a mix of disciplinary perspectives at various levels and via different methodological approaches and to acknowledge the state's role in shaping family related migration practices and lives      The Standard of Living Among One Hundred Negro Migrant Families in Philadelphia Sadie Tanner Mossell, 1921      Rural Development And Migration Sally E. Findley, Calvin Goldscheider, 2019-10-16 Perhaps because I grew up on a farm in Ohio I have long been interested in rural development Although I first became a migrant at the age of 17 when I left the farm to continue my studies in a city college I was not aware of the relation between rural development and migration until many years later when I began studying patterns of urban and rural poverty This research has grown out of my continuing investigation of the ways that migration has been seen as both a response to chronic conditions of rural poverty and a factor potentially exacerbating urban poverty conditions If governments wanted to deal with urban poverty they would want to restrict urban migration yet if they reduced urban migration this would remove one of the important means available to persons seeking to raise themselves out of rural impoverishment This would clearly be a no win situation for the rural poor the only way to deal fairly with both urban and rural poverty would be to foster socio economic development of rural areas Thus I became interested in studying the patterns of rural development which actually have had an effect on the migration decisions of rural families      Fields of Toil Isabel Valle, 1994 Text and photographs present case studies of migrant laborers in Texas Oregon and Washington      Annual Demographic Data for Migrant Family Housing Centers California. left behind and those who cross the border Carol B Stack author of All Our Kin and Call To Home In this compelling intimate and heartbreaking look into the lives of Mexican migrants who leave children Dreby brings an impressive blend of ethnography interviews and surveys with parents children and caregivers collected over four years on both sides of the border to bear This is a story of migration where parental sacrifice is monumental yet dreams for intergenerational mobility are ultimately dashed The work is rich with both sociological insight and policy importance This is the rare academic work that readers will find hard to put down Kathy Edin author of Promises I Can Keep Why Poor Women Choose Motherhood Before Marriage Joanna Dreby s excellent book illuminates dimensions of migration and transnational life that have remained too often in the dark Her focus on what happens inside the black box of the migrant family shows how migrants and their children live their lives in difficult circumstances She deepens our understanding of many important issues and does so via intimate ethnographic research For example her work sheds light on the gendered practices and ideologies surrounding parental leave taking and sheds light on the incompatibility of migrant time and developmental time Her work on the power children wield in the intra family negotiations on whether and when to reunite and the long term human cost of migration is pathbreaking Watching Joanna Dreby s work develop into this book over the years has been a great joy and reading it is even more so Robert Courtney Smith Professor of Sociology Immigration Studies and Public Affairs Baruch College School of Public Affairs and Sociology Department Graduate Center CUNY Family separation brought about by labor migration is not new but hostile immigration policies have made for prolonged separations for parents and children How do families cope In this gripping and acutely observed study of Mexican migrant families Joanna Dreby reveals the multi faceted challenges facing the parents their children and teens who often harbor resentment against parents and the grandmothers who serve as caregivers back home This engagingly written book is ideal for classroom adoption and it will become a classic contribution to the scholarship on families and contemporary immigration Pierrette Hondagneu Sotelo author of God s Heart Has No Borders The Negro Migrant in Pittsburgh Abraham Epstein,1918 Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science ,1928 Sessional Papers Great Britain. background of relevant international instruments The following topics are examined under three chapter headings conditions for the reunion of families social services in the country of employment education and vocational training of children housing health cultural and religious activities etc and social services in the country of origin help with recruitment procedures emigration formalities preparation for life abroad assistance for family remaining in the home country The study takes into account the changed conditions of international labour migration since 1973 with the virtual stoppage of recruitment by Western European countries and the increasing reliance of Middle Eastern countries on foreign manpower Legislation and policies in the countries examined show that international instruments by the means cover all legal aspects of the welfare of migrant workers are often too general and therefore too weak to achieve the intended goals and are seldom fully applied even when ratified by all the states concerned Bilateral agreements and national legislative and administrative regulations are labour demand and supply oriented dealing with the migrant as a worker only and not as a human being and make no provision for legal security equality of opportunity or protection from discrimination The report stresses the need for collective action to induce governments to assume their commitments under existing international instruments and to revise and supplement these instruments to make them more responsive to the needs of migrants     The Contribution of Economics to Social Work Amy Hewes,1930 Discusses some concepts of economics an understanding of which clarifies both the problems and objectives of social work Provides a broad study of economics for the light it shines on the problems in society     Bibliography on Studies of Costs and Standards of Living in the United States United States.
