Migration The Asian Experience:

Migration: the Asian Experience Judith M. Brown, Rosemary Foot, 2016-07-27 This edited collection of essays describes the main broad streams of Asian migration and their wide geographical spread both in terms of migrants' origins and their destinations. Evidence comes from several of the countries of South and East Asia. It shows migrants moving within their own countries abroad but still within Asia and overseas particularly to Britain and North America. The essays address both the subjective and objective causes of migration and some of the consequences for the individual, the family and the migrant community both as an entity and in relation to the host society.

Body Image and the Asian Experience Hsiu-Lan Cheng, Yuying Tsong, 2024-11-13 Individuals of Asian descent are a demographic often overlooked in mainstream body image scholarship. Historically, body image concerns were thought to only affect white upper to middle class women in North America and Western Europe. However, empirical data accumulated in recent decades have subverted this myth. Contrary to popular belief and stereotypes that Asian Americans are a Model Minority in the United States, they experience significant body image concerns as well as related disordered eating and mental health challenges. Asian diasporas in Western countries also face challenges similar to those faced by Asian Americans, e.g. racialized and objectified views of Asians. Asian nationals in Asia, on the other hand, are juggling between their collective and national standards of beauty fitness and the body image ideals propagated through commercialism and capitalization amidst the historical context of colonization and the contemporary atmosphere of globalization. Body Image and the Asian Experience discusses the dearth of knowledge and sometimes misinformation about body image among people of Asian descent, including Asian nationals dwelling in Asia and those in the diaspora. Asian Americans, Asian immigrants in the United Kingdom, Australia, etc. The first section of the book reviews the applicability of existing theories in understanding the body image experiences of individuals of Asian descent and proposes a new theoretical framework that emphasizes both decolonizing and intersectional perspectives in conceptualizing Asian body image. The next section examines the current state of research on body image among Asians, Asian Americans, and Asian diasporas around the globe, including attending to some seriously neglected specific demographic and social identity groups. The last section explores mental health and psychosocial implications of body image in the aspects of mental disorders, interpersonal and social relationships, and identity development. Explores the body image of Asians, offering new theoretical insights to address their unique experiences globally. Focuses on underrepresented groups, including Asian sexual and gender minority men, advancing understanding in body image research. Examines how body image influences mental health, relationships, identity, and societal aspects.

Migration and Diaspora in Modern Asia Sunil S. Amrit, 2011-03-07 Migration is at the heart of Asian history. For centuries, migrants have tracked the routes and seas of their ancestors, merchants, pilgrims, soldiers, and sailors along the Silk Road and across the Indian Ocean and the China Sea. Over the last 150 years, however, migration within Asia and beyond has been greater than at any other time in history Sunil S Amrit's engaging and deeply informative book crosses a vast terrain from the Middle East to India and China tracing the history of modern migration. Animated by the voices of Asian migrants it tells the stories of those forced to flee from war and revolution and those who left their homes and their families in search of a better life. These stories of Asian diasporas can be joyful or poignant but they all speak of an engagement with new landscapes and new peoples.

China's Left-Behind Wives Huifen Shen, 2012-09-30 In China's Left Behind Wives Huifen Shen tells the extraordinary story of an overlooked group of women who played an important role in one of the largest waves of migration in history For roughly a century starting around 1850 large numbers of young men from southern China travelled to Southeast Asia in search of work Some were married and others returned to marry but they routinely left their wives in China to handle family affairs Drawing on in depth interviews archival materials local gazetteers newspapers and periodicals the author describes the experiences of left behind wives in the Quanzhou region of Fujian from the 1930s to the 1950s a time when war and political change caused customary practices to break down Migrant marriages were nearly always arranged and girls rarely met their husbands before the wedding Normally a bride lived with her new husband for just a few weeks or months after which he went abroad The circumstances in the 1940s and 1950s were such that many of these young women rarely or never saw their husbands again When the Pacific War cut off communications the loss of remittance money meant that they faced a difficult struggle for survival The war's end brought a brief respite but the communist ascendency led to further difficult adjustments Ultimately the experiences of the left behind wives drew them into public life and business and as Overseas Chinese policies and attitudes towards women changed in China they came to play an increasingly significant part in the processes of development and modernization
