Particular Place Urban Restructuring:

Place-making and Urban Development Pier Carlo Palermo, Davide Ponzini, 2014-12-05 The regeneration of critical urban areas through the redesign of public space with the intense involvement of local communities seems to be the central focus of place making according to some widespread practices in academic and professional circles. Recently new expertise maintains that place making could be an innovative and potentially autonomous field competing with more traditional disciplines like urban planning, urban design, architecture, and others. This book affirms that the question of making better places for people should be understood in a broader sense as a symptom of the non-contingent limitations of the urban and spatial disciplines. It maintains that research should not be oriented only towards new technical or merely formal solutions but rather towards the profound rethinking of disciplinary paradigms. In the fields of urban planning, urban design, and policy making, the challenge of place making provides scholars and practitioners a great opportunity for a much-needed critical review. Only the substantial reappraisal of long-standing technical, cultural, institutional, and social premises and perspectives can truly improve place making practices. The pressing need for place making implies trespassing undue disciplinary boundaries and experimenting a place-based approach that can innovate and integrate planning, regulations, strategic spatial visioning, and urban development projects. Moreover, the place making challenge compels urban experts and policy makers to critically reflect upon the physical and social contexts of their interventions. In this sense, facing place making today is a way to renew the civic and social role of urban planning and urban design.

Private Sector-Led Urban Development Projects Erwin Heurkens, 2012-09-04 Central to Private Sector-led Urban Development Projects lays the concept of private sector-led urban development projects. Such projects involve project developers taking a leading role and local authorities adopting a facilitating role in managing the development of an urban area based on a clear public-private role division. Such a development strategy is quite common in Anglo-Saxon urban development practices but is less known in Continental European practices. Nonetheless, since the beginning of the millennium such a development strategy also occurred in the Netherlands in the form of concessions. However, remarkably little empirical knowledge is available about how public and private actors collaborate on and manage private sector-led urban development projects. Moreover, it remains unclear what the effects of such projects are. This dissertation provides an understanding of the various characteristics of private sector-led urban development projects by conducting empirical case study research in the institutional contexts of the Netherlands and the UK. The book provides an answer to the following question: What can we learn from private sector-led urban development projects in the Netherlands and UK in terms of the collaborative and managerial roles of public and private actors and the effects of their interactions?

Financial Engineering in Sustainable Funding of Urban Development in the EU Piotr Idczak, Ida Musialkowska, 2022-08-22 This theoretically rooted and research-based book provides insights on the JESSICA funding model, which unlike the traditional non-repayable aid, focuses on supporting sustainable urban development projects.

in a repayable and recyclable way Looking through the lens of the JESSICA financial engineering mechanism used in urban transformation it examines the functioning and performance thereof and formulates policy recommendations for the future The aim of this volume is to contribute to a deeper understanding of the JESSICA sustainable funding model by exploring its repayable assistance mechanism to support sustainable urban development projects The authors make several noteworthy contributions to the literature on EU cohesion policy and shed light on the use of the repayable instruments within public interventions while providing for the first time a critical analysis of the JESSICA sustainable funding model from the holistic perspective which is especially relevant for supporting sustainable urban development Financial Engineering in Sustainable Funding of Urban Development in the EU provides policy significant findings that are important for EU cohesion policy in the field of repayable assistance to be reinvested in the long term in urban and regional transformation A Particular Place

Sanders,1987

In the past twenty years the study of urban politics has shifted from a predominant concern with political culture and ethos to a preoccupation with political economy particularly that of urban development Urban scholars have come to recognize that cities are shaped by forces beyond their boundaries From that focus have emerged the views that cities are clearly engaged in economic competition that market processes are shaped by national policy decisions sometimes intentionally and sometimes inadvertently and that the costs and benefits of economic growth are unevenly distributed But what else needs to be said about the policies and politics of urban development To supplement prevailing theories The Politics of Urban Development argues that the role of local actors in making development decisions merits closer study Whatever the structural constraints politics still matters Collectively the essays provide ample evidence that local government officials and other community actors do not simply follow the imperatives that derive from the national political economy they are able to assert a significant degree of influence over the shared destiny of an urban population The impact of the collection is to heighten awareness of local political practices and of how and why they make a difference Public Places - Urban Spaces
