Congress. Joint Economic Committee,1991 China's Foreign Trade ,2005 Archaeologies of Food in Australia

Madeline Shanahan,2025-11-01 Twenty first century Australia is a nation somewhat obsessed with food From cookbooks to television screens we are surrounded by conversations about what and how we eat This fixation highlights the fact that food is and always has been a central component of human culture especially in a diverse nation like Australia In recent years this contemporary food focus has increasingly looked to the past for answers relating to health and sustainable practices While historians in Australia have contributed extensively to these discussions there has been surprisingly little input from archaeologists This is even more surprising when we consider that so much of what archaeologists excavate such as faunal remains ceramics and cesspits can collectively tell the story of food culture when drawn together and considered as a whole To open up this dialogue Archaeologies of Food in Australia addresses the archaeology of food from deep time to the recent past It showcases the many varied approaches to the study of food in Australia from the archaeological sciences such as zooarchaeology and archaeobotanical analysis through to discussions of historic kitchens and cookery Archaeologies of Food in Australia spans diverse cultural groups including First Nations peoples European migrants and Chinese diaspora communities and examines evidence across millennia Contributors demonstrate the breadth and richness of archaeological food research currently undertaken in Australia and in doing so they address critical questions about diet cookery dining and food culture In this collection eight food stories from Australia s past have been selected to help open the door to many more readers and to many more questions The great depth of time and diversity in Australian archaeology when coupled with the broad range of skills in the discipline presents enormous potential for further research Cultural Heritage in Modern

Conflict Timothy Clack,Mark Dunkley,2022-09-09 This edited volume offers an in depth study of heritage and warfare from the perspective of defence studies The book focuses on how in different contexts heritage can be a catalyst and target of conflict an obstacle to stabilisation and a driver of peace building It documents the changing role of heritage in terms of both exploitation and protection in various military capabilities theatres and operations With particular concern for the areas of subthreshold and hybrid warfare stabilisation cultural relationships human security and disaster response the volume reviews the historical relationship between heritage and armed conflict including the roles of embedded archaeologists safeguarding of ethics and dislodgement and destruction of material culture Various chapters in the book also demonstrate the value of understanding how state and non state actors exploit cultural heritage across different defence postures and within both subthreshold and proxy warfare in order to achieve military political economic and diplomatic advantages This book will be of interest to students of defence studies heritage studies anthropology and security studies in general as well as military practitioners

Things Modern Frank Dikötter,2007

Maps many changes in the material landscape of China from the mid nineteenth century to the advent of communism in 1949 This book analyses how a very pragmatic attitude towards material goods prevailed as most consumers bought the new and discarded the old without misgivings

Exotic Commodities Frank Dikötter,2006 Exotic Commodities is the first book to chart the consumption and spread of foreign goods in China from the mid nineteenth century to the advent of communism in 1949 Richly illustrated and revealing this volume recounts how exotic commodities were acquired and adapted in a country commonly believed to have remained hostile toward alien things during the industrial era China was not immune to global trends that prized the modern goods of civilized nations Foreign imports were enthusiastically embraced by both the upper and lower classes and rapidly woven into the fabric of everyday life often in inventive ways Scarves skirts blouses and corsets were combined with traditional garments to create strikingly original fashions Industrially produced rice sugar wheat and canned food revolutionized local cuisine and mass produced mirrors were hung on doorframes to ward off malignant spirits Frank Dik tter argues that ordinary people were the least inhibited in acquiring these products and therefore the most instrumental in changing the material culture of China Landscape paintings door leaves and calligraphy scrolls were happily mixed with kitschy oil paintings and modern advertisements Old and new interacted in ways that might have seemed incongruous to outsiders but were perfectly harmonious to local people This pragmatic attitude would eventually lead to China s own mass production and export of cheap modern goods which today can be found all over the world The nature of this history raises the question which Dik tter pursues in his conclusion If the key to surviving in a fast changing world is the ability to innovate could China be more in tune with modernity than Europe
