On Education For The Authentic:

On Education for the Authentic Philo T. Pritzkau, 1977 Handbook of Research on Education and Technology in a Changing Society Wang, Victor C. X., 2014-05-31 Technology has become an integral part of our everyday lives. This trend in ubiquitous technology has also found its way into the learning process at every level of education. The Handbook of Research on Education and Technology in a Changing Society offers an in-depth description of concepts related to different areas, issues, and trends within education and technological integration in modern society. This handbook includes definitions and terms as well as explanations of concepts and processes regarding the integration of technology into education. Addressing all pertinent issues and concerns in education and technology in our changing society with a wide breadth of discussion, this handbook is an essential collection for educators, academicians, students, researchers, and librarians.

Authentic Virtual World Education Sue Gregory, Denise Wood, 2017-09-23 The book presents the possibilities and realities of virtual worlds in education through the application of 3D virtual worlds to support authentic learning, creativity, learner engagement, and cultural diversity in higher education. It includes a unique variety of cross-disciplinary approaches to research, teaching, and learning in a virtual world, including analysis of data from the experiences of students in education, law, Chinese language, sustainability, computer architecture, business, health, and the Arts. The book provides unique learning experiences that have celebrated the rich media of virtual world environments through the utilisation of affordances such as simulation, bots, synchronous interaction, machinima, and games. The perspectives come from Australia and New Zealand, higher education academics, but are transferable to any higher educational institution in the sector worldwide and is significant to various disciplines in the higher education field. Moral Responsibility, Authenticity, and Education Ishtiyaque

Haji, Stefaan E. Cuypers, 2008-06-25 The primary purpose of this book is to explain the distinction on the one hand between indoctrination and education and on the other between responsibility, subverting, manipulation, and mere causation. Both are elucidated by an appeal to common ground: an account of when our motivations and other springs of action are truly our own or authentic. The book progresses from analyses of the sort of agency that responsibility requires and the authenticity of our motivations together with a discussion of the relevance of these analyses to manipulation and related problems in the philosophy of education to a defense of the thesis that responsibility from a love's standpoint is of vital significance and the implications of this thesis for what the authors deem to be legitimate goals of education and other issues in free will. Philosophers and advanced students working in free will, moral psychology, and the philosophy of education will find this text to be extremely useful. Towards Authentic Experiential Learning in Translator Education Don Kiraly, 2015-10-28 This volume deals with the theory and practice of incorporating authentic experiential work into curricula for the education of professional translators and interpreters. The contributions deal with a wide variety of topics in this domain, extending from the foundations of experiential learning in pedagogical epistemology to discussions of exemplary experiments with the use of authentic project work at leading translator and interpreter education institutions in Germany Spain and Switzerland Matters of educational philosophy curriculum design as well as instructional design are dealt with and the wide range of focal points and perspectives of the various authors provides a multi faceted view of authentic project work that has so far been lacking in translation pedagogy literature

Reality by Design Joseph Petraglia,1998 In the first paragraphs of this volume the author identifies an authenticity paradox that the purported real worldness of a learning environment technique or task is so rhetorically potent that educators frequently call attention to it in pedagogical conversations to legitimize their undertakings while at the same time terms such as real world and authentic do not require and even resist precise delineation Using the language of authenticity as a keyhole through which to view contemporary educational theory Petraglia draws on theories of cognition education and knowledge to articulate the interdisciplinarity of constructivism and to expose the unsettling combination of constructivism's social scientific and epistemological commitments He argues that a full bodied embrace of constructivist theory requires that educators forgo knowledge as we know it and recommends a rhetorical approach to constructivist instruction that recognizes the cultural social and behavioral practices which play an enormous role in defining learners real worlds Applying this critique to the field of educational technology the author does not merely lament constructivist theory's current shortcomings but offers a means by which these shortcomings can be engaged and perhaps overcome
