SADDLER, 2020-12-07 African Americans go through so much on a day to day basis It is important that others get an understanding of the background behind the struggle the color of their skin brings It is also a challenge living in this country where you are affected by being biracial as well So many unarmed Black men being killed because they are seen as a threat when they are no more of a threat than men of any other nationality The color of a human being's skin shouldn't have them feared to live life because they don't know when it will be taken We need to take a stand and end what should be history while acknowledging it never stopped Racism has been going on for years but Black people have had enough Mothers of Black boys have had enough Wives of Black men have had enough Equality is key and not being afraid to live proudly in the skin you are in no matter what shade We are Overcome Bonnie Allen, 1995 With an unerring instinct for political incorrectness Bonnie Allen targets the concerns that fuel the national obsession with race Allen is hilarious insightful and outrageous as she lampoons contemporary issues and historical themes social behaviors and attitudes Being Black, Being Male on Campus Derrick R. Broome, 2016-12-28 Explores how race and gender matter on campus and how Black males navigate college for academic and personal success This work marks a radical shift away from the pervasive focus on the challenges that Black male students face and the deficit rhetoric that often limits perspectives about them Instead Derrick R Broome offers reflective counter narratives of success Being Black Being Male on Campus uses in depth interviews to investigate the collegiate experiences of Black male students at historically White institutions Framed through Critical Race Theory and Blackmaleness the study provides new analysis on the utility and importance of Black Male Initiatives BMIs This work explores Black men's perceptions identity constructions and ambitions while it speaks meaningfully to how race and gender intersect as they influence students experiences Well written and informative this exciting project cuts across many of the strengths of previous publications and fills significant theoretical and methodological gaps by focusing on authentically voiced Black men who are finding and making their way in higher education and in life James Earl Davis coeditor of Educating African American Males Contexts for Consideration Possibilities for Practice Bet on Black Eboni K.
