

The feathers on the neck are long and for when you look for their head when the neck-retracts it looks bulky

When the neck is fully stretched the feathers wrap around to the back from each side

The feathers meet in the middle of the neck starting at the crown and meeting at the shoulders

The feathers are very prominent on the crown from any angle, the feathers will catch the light on them

The crown feathers gather around the skull to the back of the head

The beard of the Raven sits tight under the throat and not feathers

There are long stiff feathers like bristles under the throat

In young Ravens these are not as long or stay on the necks

The feathers are split down the middle and spread out to the sides

The feathers overlap each other and are very pointed. They are short under the throat and then become long in the middle
