Sustainability Things Change Things Stay the Same From Stimulus to Behavioral Decision-Making Gérard Manière, Gérard Coureau, 2020-02-13 The proper detection of stimuli coming from the environment is vital for any organism in vertebrates as in invertebrates. Animals use different sensory modalities independently or simultaneously to detect them such as audition, vision, olfaction, taste, and touch. Indeed, in their ecosystems, animals constantly perceive various sensory signals. These stimuli come either from the environment (light, temperature, humidity, salinity) or from other organisms (calls, colors, movements, pheromones, allomones). This eBook combines studies and comments, research articles, reviews, opinions, and dealing with how animals detect a precise, simple, or complex sensory signal, confer a value to that signal, and respond to it by devoted and adaptive behaviors. This eBook provides a general overview for the detection of identified stimuli and the mechanisms that lead to decision making in animals. It also highlights the differences and similarities that may exist between vertebrates and invertebrates. Last Words on Materialism and Kindred Subjects Ludwig Buchner, Alex
