Managing New Developments In The Gulf:

Globalization and the Middle East Toby Dodge, Richard A. Higgott, 2002 The subject of globalization has come to dominate informed debate across a broad sweep of disciplines But there are few good detailed published studies on the influence of globalization on non European areas of the world This study aims to fill the gap by bringing together a number of experts on the Middle East to examine the dynamic changes it has brought to the region The book examines the place globalization occupies in the history of the Middle East and how it is set to transform relations between governments in the area and the external and former colonial powers It focuses on the political cultural and economic effects of globalization on the states of the Gulf before applying each of these three themes to the wider Middle East Managing New Developments in the Gulf Rosemary Hollis, 2000 The global energy sector may be more subject to market forces than it used to be but management is still required in the interests of both producers and consumers Market management is not easy however in unstable regions such as the Middle East In the name of protecting the free flow of oil the United States is now so entrenched in the security arrangements of the Gulf that it has become as much a local as an external actor and is likely to remain so as long as Iraq is considered a threat In fact Iraq is a regional security emergency waiting to happen while in Iran and the GCC states the real preoccupations are internal socio economic imperatives This book the latest in a series of publications produced in association with the Research and Studies Division of the Crown Prince Court in Abu Dhabi gives a sharp depiction of how regional political dynamics are determining the energy scene in the Gulf Published in association with Division of Research and Studies Crown Prince Court of Abu Dhabi Buildings and Building Management, 1920 Vols for 1933-42 include an annual directory number for 1959 an annual roster of realtors Outer Continental Shelf Natural Gas and Oil Resource Management Comprehensive Program, 1992-1997 United States.
