

Mansions, Mills, and Main Streets

WITH 7 AREA MAPS AND OVER 250 ILLUSTRATIONS

Wanting to be explored within a 50-mile radius of New York are a wonder well collected in a quiet millpond, a looming Gothic mansion high on a hill, a simple country church with exquisite stained-glass windows, a Revolutionary town, an intricate maze of red-brick factories, a research center by Ezra Sturges, houses by Frank Lloyd Wright. The authors explain, "This is a guidebook to aid in discovering this exciting blend of architecture and history. We have traveled modern highways, historic roads, and twisting lanes in search of architecture that is truly expressive of American values and creativity. . . . Although the book is oriented toward reaching destinations by automobile, it is quite easy to visit many sites by public transportation. Most communities are accessible by rail or bus; many sites are a short walk or taxi ride from the station or bus stop."

For the native New Yorker who wants to make a day's excursion into the countryside, for the visitor who wants to see more than Manhattan, or for the person lucky enough to live in the area the guide recommends, here is a book that will lead not only to the delights of the best-known buildings but to wonderful discoveries of unfamiliar places.

Carole Rifkind coordinated the program for historical architecture for the Hudson River Museum, she is currently serving on the Historic Preservation Committee for the Westchester Bicentennial. Carol Levine is an editorial consultant at Sleepy Hollow Restoration and the author of several articles on New York State history.
