Building the New Museum Suzanne Stephens,Colin Amery,1986    SANAA: New Museum ,2011-03-31 The New Museum designed by Tokyo based architects Kazuyo Sejima and Ryue Nishizawa SANAA 2010 Pritzker Prize is the first art museum ever constructed from the ground up in downtown Manhattan as well as an architectural contribution to New York s urban landscape Sejima and Nishizawa who received the commission in 2002 have described the building as their response to the history and powerful personalities of both the New Museum and its site The Bowery was very gritty when we first visited it they have said We were a bit shocked but we were also impressed that a contemporary art museum wanted to be there As visitors approach the Bowery they encounter the building as a dramatic stack of seven rectangular boxes This distinctive form derives directly from the architects defining solution to fundamental challenges of the site A dense and ambitious program including the need for open flexible gallery spaces of different heights and atmospheres The New Museum is clad in a seamless anodized expanded aluminum mesh chosen by SANAA to emphasize the volumes of the boxes while dressing the whole of the building with a delicate filmy softly shimmering skin With windows just visible behind this porous scrim like surface the building appears as a single coherent and even heroic form that is nevertheless mutable dynamic and animated by the changing light of day an appropriate visual metaphor for the openness of the New Museum and the ever changing nature of contemporary art    Contemporary Museum Architecture and Design

The New Museum of Modern Art Glenn D. Lowry, Terence Riley, 2005 For the past few years, The Museum of Modern Art has been in the midst of the largest building project in its history. Designed by Yoshio Taniguchi, the new museum will open in midtown Manhattan in November 2004/2005 to coincide with MoMA's 75th anniversary. The 630,000 square foot complex is nearly twice the size of the former facility, with dramatically expanded and redesigned spaces for exhibitions, public programming, educational outreach and scholarly research. In his initial proposal, Taniguchi explained that his goal was to create an ideal environment for art and people through the imaginative and disciplined use of light, materials and space. His stated vision of a museum that preserves and reinforces MoMA's unique character as the repository of an incomparable collection of modern and contemporary art, as a pioneer of museums of modern art with a unique historical inheritance and as an urban institution in a midtown Manhattan location, has been resoundingly implemented. The New Museum of Modern Art offers an affordable, concise overview of the new building and its master architect, by Glenn D. Lowry, Director of The Museum of Modern Art.

New American Art Museums Helen Searing, Whitney Museum of American Art, 1982-01-01 Examines the development of the architecture of American art museums, analyzing seven recent buildings.

Museum Architecture Suzanne MacLeod, 2013-04-12 Recent decades have witnessed an explosion of museum building around the world and the subsequent publication of multiple texts dedicated to the subject. Museum Architecture A new biography focuses on the stories we tell of museum buildings in order to explore the nature of museum architecture and the problems of architectural history when applied to the museum and gallery. Starting from a discussion of the key issues in contemporary museum design, the book explores the role of architectural history in the prioritisation of specific stories of museum building and museum architects and the exclusion of other actors from the history of museum making. These omissions have contemporary relevance and impact directly on the ways in which the physical structures of museums are shaped. Theoretically, the book places a particular emphasis on the work of Pierre Bourdieu and Henri Lefebvre in order to establish an understanding of buildings as social relations the outcome of complex human interactions and relationships The book utilises a micro history an in depth case study of the National Gallery of the North the Walker Art Gallery in Liverpool to expose the myriad ways in which museum architecture is made Coupled with this detailed exploration is an emphasis on contemporary museum design which utilises the understanding of the social realities of museum making to explore ideas for a socially sustainable museum architecture fit for the twenty first century The Architecture of Art Museums Ronnie
