Vocation and the Politics of Work Jeffrey Scholes,2013-03-08 Since Martin Luther vocations or callings have had a close relationship with daily work It is a give and take relationship in which the meaning of a vocation typically negotiates with the kinds of work available and vice versa at any given time While vocation language still has currency in Western culture today s predominant meaning of vocation has little to do with the actual work performed on a job Jeffrey Scholes contends that recent theological treatments of the Protestant concept of vocation both academic and popular often unwittingly collude with consumer culture to circulate a concept of vocation that is detached from the material conditions of work The result is a consumer friendly vocation that is rendered impotent to inform and if necessary challenge the political norms of the workplace For example he classifies Rick Warren s concept of purpose in his best selling book The Purpose Driven Life as a functional equivalent of vocation that acts in this way Other popular uses of vocation along with insights culled from traditional theology and consumer culture studies help Scholes reveal the current state of vocations in the West Using recent scholarship in the field of political theology he argues that resisting commodification is a possibility and a prerequisite for a political vocation if it is at all able to engage the norms that regulate and undermine the pursuit of justice in many modern workplaces

Solidarity Ethics Rebecca Todd Peters,2014-01-01 Rebecca Todd Peters argues for an ethic of solidarity as a new model for how people of faith in the first world can live with integrity in the midst of global injustice and shape a more just future Solidarity Ethics seeks to address the economic and social structures of our globalized context Peters argues for a concrete ethics rooted in the Christian tradition of justice and transformation deeply informed by solidarity and relationality Utilizing these theologically rich resources an ethics of relational reflection action and construction is provided as an avenue for building viable strategies for social transformation
