New Trains For New Railways:

Thameslink rolling stock procurement Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Transport Committee, 2011-12-16 The procurement process completed by the Department for Transport which led to the selection of Siemens rather than Bombardier as the preferred bidder for new Thameslink rolling stock should be independently reviewed by the National Audit Office The Transport Committee could not evaluate whether the decision to choose Siemens was arrived at correctly because all of the bids were and remain confidential It is believed that it is in the public interest to have an independent review to evaluate whether this massive contract was awarded correctly on the basis of the criteria in the original invitation to tender The Transport Committee has therefore written to the Comptroller and Auditor General to request he undertake this work and report to Parliament before summer 2012 There is now widespread agreement that the criteria used in the procurement were too narrowly drawn in excluding socio economic factors Algorithmic Methods for Railway Optimization Frank Geraets, Leo Kroon, Anita Schoebel, Dorothea Wagner, Christos Zaroliagis, 2007-09-14 This state of the art survey features papers that were selected after an open call following the International Dagstuhl Seminar on Algorithmic Methods for Railway Optimization The second part of the volume constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 4th International Workshop on Algorithmic Methods and Models for Optimization of Railways The 17 full papers presented here were carefully reviewed and selected from numerous submissions The Railway Engineer Lawrence Saunders, S. R. Blundstone, 1898 Increasing passenger rail capacity Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2010-11-09 The Department for Transport is eighteen months into a five year 9 billion investment programme to improve rail travel in particular by increasing the number of passenger places on trains by March 2014 The Department's latest plans show that all the relevant targets will be missed There will be 15 per cent fewer extra places delivered in London in the morning peak and 33 per cent fewer into other major cities compared to the numbers the Department stated would be needed just to hold overcrowding at current levels The Committee is concerned that the failure to meet the targets set will lead to substantial increases in already unacceptable overcrowding levels by 2014 and beyond Rising demand for rail travel combined with serious cuts in public expenditure make it imperative that the rail industry becomes more efficient otherwise the passenger will suffer The Department says that levels of crowding and ticket prices depend on policy decisions about the level of government subsidy but this ignores the scope for efficiency savings to release resources for front line services The industry's ability to provide a good quality rail service including acceptable levels of crowding depends crucially on the efficiency of all players in the rail industry and of Network Rail in particular Rail infrastructure costs more in Great Britain than in other countries and there is a large potential for Network Rail to improve its efficiency The Office of Rail Regulation should be challenging Network Rail's efficiency at a detailed level Railway International Passenger and Ticket Agents Journal ,1917 Annual Report [including Railroad and Street Railway
