Opening Networks To Competition The Regulation And Pricing Of Access:

Opening Networks to Competition David Gabel, David F. Weiman, 1998 Ten papers from a November 1993 conference at Columbia University explore the related problems of regulating and pricing access both in traditional network industries such as gas electric rail and telephones services and in the newer sectors such as microcomputers automated teller machines and credit card markets. They discuss the high entry barrier and the interest of incumbent companies to refuse to negotiate interconnection agreements with newcomers. Among the case studies cited are telecommunications in New Zealand rail freight compared to telecommunications railways in Britain and the exclusionary behavior of Microsoft in the operating system market. Introducing Competition into the Piped Water Market Urs Meister, 2007-11-03 Using tools of modern industrial economics Urs Meister examines the effects of privatisation and competition in the piped water industry. Considering the two main approaches for competition in an industry with natural monopoly character common carriage interconnection and franchise bidding auctions he analyses costs retail prices and investment. Such analysis shows that competition may be a valuable opportunity to improve the efficiency of water supply.

Making Open Development Inclusive Matthew L. Smith, Ruhya Kristine Seward, 2020-08-25 Drawing on ten years of empirical work and research analyses of how open development has played out in practice. A decade ago a significant trend toward openness emerged in international development. Open development can describe initiatives as disparate as open government open health data open science open education and open innovation. The theory was that open systems related to data science and innovation would enable more inclusive processes of human development. This volume drawing on ten years of empirical work and research analyzes how open development has played out in practice. Focusing on development practices in the Global South the contributors explore the crucial questions of who is allowed to participate when an initiative is open and who benefits or not from them finding that processes characterized as open can sometimes be exclusionary in their implementation. Examining a wide range of cases they consider the governance of open development ecosystems and the implementation of a variety of applications including open educational resources collaborative science and the uses of crowdsourcing. Communications Commission,1994 Electricity Market Reform Fereidoon Sioshansi,Wolfgang Pfaffenberger,2006-04-13 Since the late 1980s policy makers and regulators in a number of countries have liberalized restructured or deregulated their electric power sector typically by introducing competition at the generation and retail level These experiments have resulted in vastly different outcomes some highly encouraging others utterly disastrous However many countries continue along the same path for a variety of reasons Electricity Market Reform examines the most important competitive electricity markets around the world and provides definitive answers as to why some markets have performed admirably while others have utterly failed often with dire financial and cost consequences The lessons contained within are direct relevance to regulators policy makers the investment community industry academics and graduate students of electricity markets worldwide Covers electricity market liberalization and deregulation on a worldwide scale Features expert contributions from key people within the electricity sector

Utilities Reform in Twenty-First Century Australia Malcolm Abbott,Bruce Cohen,2021-07-01

Utilities Reform in 21st Century Australia Providing the Essentials traces the development and consequences of the economic reform measures undertaken in the utilities sector in Australia communications energy water wastewater services and transport in the last years of the 20th century and early decades of the 21st century In doing so it looks at the process of reform across industries and across the state and federal jurisdictions to identify what motivations the various governments had for pursuing reform how change varied across jurisdictions and what issues arose in the process Although by the mid 1990s all states and territories and the Australian Government were committed to reforming utilities as part of the National Competition Policy not all pursued this reform with the same degree of speed and breadth of action The broad trends of economic reform in Australia and abroad are also touched upon to provide an outline of the wider context in which the reform of the utilities occurred This book therefore explores the relationship between politics and society on the one hand and economic reform on the other as well as the efforts of governments in Australia to promote economic growth and the wealth of Australians in an increasingly complex and challenging global economic climate
