Political Prayer in Nineteenth-Century American Literature Amy Dunham Strand, 2024-09-30 Political Prayer in Nineteenth Century American Literature explores how American women writers such as Catharine Maria Sedgwick Harriet Beecher Stowe Rebecca Harding Davis and Emily Dickinson translated petitioning a political form for redress of grievances with religious resonance or what Strand calls political prayer in their literary works At a time when petitioning was historically transforming governments mobilizing masses and democratizing North America these White women writers wrote literary petitions to advocate for others in social justice causes such as antiremoval antislavery and labor reform to transform American literature and culture and to articulate an ambivalent political agency Political Prayer in Nineteenth Century American Literature introduces historic petitioning into literary study

as an overlooked but important new lens for reading nineteenth century fiction and poetry Understanding petitions in these literary works and these literary works as petitions also helps us to understand women s political agency before their enfranchisement to explain why scholars have long debated and inconsistently interpreted the works of well anthologized women writers and to see more clearly the multidimensional coexisting and often competing religious and political aspects of their writings

Transformations of Domesticity in Modern Women's Writing T. Foster,2002-11-05 Transformations of Domesticity in Modern Women s Writing makes new connections between feminist criticism of domestic ideology in the nineteenth century modernist women s experiments with literary form contemporary feminist debates about the politics of location and postmodern theories of social space The book identifies a coherent transition of women s writing that transforms domestic ideologies of woman s place by redefining the ideas about space that underlie that ideology The result is to open the space of gender identity to new relations of class and race
