angiography generate vast amounts of visual data allowing for a detailed examination of the eye's structure and function. These images provide invaluable insights into the presence and progression of various ocular diseases such as age-related macular degeneration, diabetic retinopathy, and glaucoma. While ophthalmologists possess expertise in interpreting these images, the manual analysis of large datasets can be time-consuming, prone to errors, and subject to inter-observer variability. Artificial Intelligence (AI)-based approaches have emerged as promising tools to augment the diagnostic capabilities of ophthalmologists, enabling faster and more accurate assessments. This proposal aims to explore and develop innovative approaches, including but not limited to transfer learning, active learning, semi-supervised learning, weakly supervised learning, meta-learning, graph neural networks, multimodal learning, and federated learning, etc., to enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of AI in ophthalmic imaging. This collection aims to promote research that improves the accuracy, scalability, interpretability, and generalization of AI models for ophthalmic imaging. This Research Topic welcomes manuscripts on the following themes:

Annotation-efficient AI: Manual data annotation is a labor-intensive and time-consuming process that often poses challenges in terms of scalability, cost, and subjectivity. This topic aims to explore innovative approaches and techniques to develop annotation-efficient AI models that can leverage minimal data annotation while maintaining high performance and generalization, such as active learning, semi-weakly unsupervised learning, etc.

Ophthalmic Literature, 1917 I Notes - Strabismus Dhaval Patel, This manual is a collection of the notes I made found in books or internet while studying for the Final MD exams for ophthalmology. I have segregated topics just like book chapters to find them back easily. Though these all might be far less than other preparation notes available, I am proud of what I have made and I feel nice to present them to my upcoming ophthalmology friends.
