becoming present in the temporal This dissertation focuses on the life and thought of Martin Buber preceding his writing of I and Thou It traces the development of his ideas through 1 the mystical thought and the Erlebnis mysticism experience based mysticism of his life from his university career 2 his studies and Hasidic writings in the early 1900s and 3 his philosophy of dialogue as presented in I and Thou The study demonstrates the consistent theme of Buber's attempt to find the connection of the transcendent to the mundane through engagement in daily activities Buber's phrase hallowing the everyday can be traced directly to his interpretation of Hasidism but it equally applies to each of the three stages of his thought Erlebnis mysticism Hasidic teachings and philosophy of dialogue In following the common thread of Buber's life through each of these three stages it can be seen that his philosophy of dialogue depends on a hidden spark of Hasidism for its image of the person and meaning of life
