world The region of modern day Iraq is uniquely rich in evidence for ancient mathematics because its prehistoric inhabitants wrote on clay tablets many hundreds of thousands of which have been archaeologically excavated deciphered and translated Drawing from these and a wealth of other textual and archaeological evidence Robson gives an extraordinarily detailed picture of how mathematical ideas and practices were conceived used and taught during this period She challenges the prevailing view that they were merely the simplistic precursors of classical Greek mathematics and explains how the prevailing view came to be Robson reveals the true sophistication and beauty of ancient Middle Eastern mathematics as it evolved over three thousand years from the earliest beginnings of recorded accounting to complex mathematical astronomy Every chapter provides detailed information on sources and the book includes an appendix on all mathematical cuneiform tablets published before 2007

Archives and Libraries in the Ancient Near East, 1500-300 B.C. Olof Pedersén, 1998 Neo-Assyrian Legal Documents in the Kouyunjik Collection of the British Museum Theodore Kwasman, 1988 This volume is a critical edition of 426 Neo Assyrian legal documents from the Kouyunjik Collection of the British Museum. It includes those texts which have been identified as belonging to an individual archive holder and thus forming a dossier or archive. 406 tablets are ascribed in this edition to 192 names. The majority of documents edited in this book are conveyance texts and may be divided into two categories: the sale of immovable and the sale of movable property. The sale of movable property is almost exclusively represented in this edition by the sale of persons. The majority of contracts are loan documents while juridical documents usually court decisions are quite rare among the Kouyunjik texts.

The University of Chicago Oriental Institute Publications, 1993 Literary and Miscellaneous Texts in the Ashmolean Museum Oliver Robert Gurney, 1989 This eleventh volume of the Oxford Editions of Cuneiform Texts contains autograph copies of all 143 Akkadian and Sumerian literary texts and fragments still unpublished in the Ashmolean Museum including a number of miscellaneous texts inscribed on the reverse of lexical texts as school exercises. Gurney provides transliterations and translations of some of the better preserved pieces among which are an Old Babylonian hymn to Amurru, three Old Babylonian incantations, a fragment of a Babylonian state ritual and an expository text on the cultic calendar. The text is supplemented with 45 pages of black and white illustrations of the tablets.

Debt and Economic Renewal in the Ancient Near East Michael Hudson, Marc Van de Mieroop, 2002 History and analysis of the economic and social development of debt, interest bearing loans, royal remission of debts and economic renewal policies.

Economic Structures of Antiquity Morris Silver, 1995-02-14 The economy of the ancient Middle East and Greece is reinterpreted by Morris Silver in this provocative new synthesis. Silver finds that the ancient economy emerges as a class of economies with its own laws of motion shaped by transaction costs, the resources used up in exchanging ownership rights. The analysis of transaction costs provides insights into many characteristics of the ancient economy such as the important role of the sacred and symbolic gestures in making contracts, magical technology, the entrepreneurial role of high-born women, the elevation of familial ties and other departures from impersonal economics, reliance on slavery and adoption, and the insatiable drive to accumulate trust capital. The peculiar behavior patterns and mindsets of ancient economic man are shown to be facilitators of economic growth. In recent years our view of the economy of the ancient world has been shaped by the theories of Karl Polanyi. Silver confronts Polanyi's empirical propositions with the available evidence and demonstrates that antiquity knew active and sophisticated markets. In the course of providing an alternative analytical framework for studying the ancient economy, Silver gives critical attention to the economic views of the Assyriologists I. M. Diakonoff, W. F. Leemans, Mario Liverani and J. N. Postgate of the Egyptologists Jacob J. Janssen and Wolfgang Helck and of the numerous followers of Moses Finley. Silver convincingly demonstrates that the ancient world was not static periods of pervasive economic regulation by the state are interspersed with lengthy periods of relatively unfettered market activity and the economies of Sumer Babylonia and archaic Greece were capable of transforming themselves in order to take advantage of new opportunities This new synthesis is essential reading for economic historians and researchers of the ancient Near East and Greece The Catholic Biblical Quarterly ,2008 Includes various reports of the Association The Ancient Near East, C. 3000-330 BC Amélie Kuhrt,1995 Scribal Habits in the Ancient Near East June Ashton,2008 Elenchus of Biblica (1991) Robert North,1994 Origin and Transformation of the Ancient Israelite Festival Calendar Jan A. Wagenaar,2005 The book focusses on the origin and transformation of the priestly festival calendar Since the epoch making work of Julius Wellhausen at the end of the 19th century the differences between the various ancient Israelite festival calendars have often been explained in terms of a gradual evolution which shows an increasing historicisation denaturalisation and ritualisation The festivals were in Wellhausen s view gradually detached from agricultural conditions and celebrated more and more at fixed points in the year This study tries to show that the changes in the priestly festival calendar reflect a conscious effort to adapt the ancient Israelite festival calendar to the semi annual layout of the Babylonian festival year The ramifications of the change only come to the fore after a careful study of the agricultural conditions of ancient Israel and Mesopotamia makes clear that passover and the festival of unleavened bread were originally celebrated in the second month of the year The first month of the year envisaged by the priestly festival calendar for the celebration of passover and the festival of unleavened bread in turn mirrors the date of one of the two semi annual Babylonian New Year festivals The two Babylonian New Year festivals were celebrated exactly six months apart at the vernal and autumnal equinoxes In order to adapt the ancient Israelite festival calendar to the Babylonian scheme with two New Year festivals a year the date of passover and the festival of unleavened bread had to be moved up by one month The consequences for the origin of passover the festival of unleavened bread the festival of weeks and the festival of huts are charted and the relations between the various ancient Israelite festival calendars are determined anew The Messenger in the Ancient Semitic World Samuel A. Meier,1988 Originally presented as the author s thesis doctoral Harvard University 1986 Dictionary of the Ancient Near East Piotr Bienkowski,Alan Ralph Millard,2000 The earliest farms cities governments legal codes and alphabets developed in the ancient Near East Four major religion Judaism Zoroastrianism Christianity and Islam began in the region Ideas inventions and institutions spread to all parts of the globe from the urban centers of the ancient Egyptians Syrians Hittites Assyrians Babylonians and other peoples of the biblical world For good reason is the ancient Near East known as the cradle of civilization
