Rhetoric and Courtliness in Early Modern Literature Jennifer Richards, 2003-05-22 Rhetoric and Courtliness in Early Modern Literature explores the early modern interest in conversation as a newly identified art Conversation was widely accepted to have been inspired by the republican philosopher Cicero Recognizing his influence on courtesy literature the main source for civil conversation Jennifer Richards uncovers alternative ways of thinking about humanism as a project of linguistic and social reform She argues that humanists explored styles of conversation to reform the manner of association between male associates teachers and students buyers and sellers and settlers and colonial others They reconsidered the meaning of honesty in social interchange in an attempt to represent the tension between self interest and social duty Richards explores the interest in civil conversation among mid Tudor humanists John Cheke Thomas Smith and Roger Ascham as well as their self styled successors Gabriel Harvey and Edmund Spenser Historical Sociolinguistics Terttu Nevalainen, Helena Raumolin-Brunberg, 2016-11-10 Historical Sociolinguistics Language Change in Tudor and Stuart England is the seminal text in the field of historical sociolinguistics Demonstrating the real world application of sociolinguistic research methodologies this book examines the social factors which promoted linguistic changes in English laying the foundation for Modern Standard English This revised edition of Nevalainen and Raumolin Brunberg s ground breaking work discusses the grammatical developments that shaped English in the early modern period presents the sociolinguistic factors affecting linguistic change in Tudor and Stuart English including gender social status and regional variation showcases the authors research into personal letters from the people who were the driving force behind these changes and demonstrates how historical linguists can make use of social and demographic history to analyse linguistic variation over an extended period of time With brand new chapters on language change and the individual and on newly developed sociolinguistic research methods Historical Sociolinguistics is essential reading for all students and researchers in this area A Distant Sovereignty Sudipta Sen, 2016-04-22 In this broad study of British rule in India during the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries Sudipta Sen takes up this dual agenda sketching out the interrelationships between nationalism imperialism and identity formation as they played out in both England and South Asia The Georgians Penelope J. Corfield, 2022-02-08 A comprehensive history of the Georgians comparing past views of these exciting turbulent and controversial times with our attitudes today The Georgian era is often seen as a time of innovations It saw the end of monarchical absolutism global exploration and settlements overseas the world s first industrial revolution deep transformations in religious and cultural life and Britain s role in the international trade in enslaved Africans But how were these changes perceived by people at the time And how do their viewpoints compare with attitudes today In this wide ranging history Penelope J Corfield explores every aspect of Georgian life politics and empire culture and society love and violence religion and science industry and towns People s responses at the time were often divided Pessimists saw loss and decline while optimists saw improvements and light. Out of such tensions came the Georgian culture of both experiment and resistance. Corfield emphasizes those elements of deep continuity that persisted even within major changes and shows how new developments were challenged if their human consequences proved dire.

The Routledge History Handbook of Gender and the Urban Experience Deborah Simonton, 2017-02-03 Challenging current perspectives of urbanisation The Routledge History Handbook of Gender and the Urban Experience explores how our towns and cities have shaped and been shaped by cultural spatial and gendered influences. This volume discusses gender in an urban context in European North American and colonial towns from the fourteenth to the twentieth century, casting new light on the development of medieval and modern settlements across the globe. Organised into six thematic parts covering economy, space, civic identity, material culture, emotions, and the colonial world, this book comprises 36 chapters by key scholars in the field. It covers a wide range of topics from women and citizenship in medieval York to gender and tradition in nineteenth and twentieth century South African cities, reframing our understanding of the role of gender in constructing the spaces and places that form our urban environment. Interdisciplinary and transnational in scope, this volume analyses the individual dynamics of each case study while also examining the complex relationships and exchanges between urban cultures. It is a valuable resource for all researchers and students interested in gender, urban history, and their intersection and interaction throughout the past five centuries.

Capital Cities and Their Hinterlands in Early Modern Europe Peter Clark, Bernard Lepetit, 1996 This work provides an analysis of European capital cities and their impact in the early modern period. Capital cities were dynamic and influential, accounting for more than a third of all European city growth during the 16th and 17th centuries. Some were ancient cities like Paris and London, a number were new expressions of royal power such as Madrid and Berlin, others were colonial cities, offshoots of state empires like Dublin or Naples.

Revolution and Counter-revolution in England, Ireland and Scotland, 1658-1660 Brian Manning, 2003 Detailing the events between the death of Cromwell and the Restoration of the monarchy in Britain, historian Brian Manning whose work has been highly praised by the late Christopher Hill, shows that the Restoration was by no means inevitable after Cromwell's death. He argues that there were great ideological and political battles fought over the future of Britain between 1658 and 1660. The strength of Manning's argument lies in the detail with which he evokes the political activity of ordinary groups of people in 17th century Britain.

This is Marxist history at its very best.

Communities in Early Modern England Alexandra Shepard, Phil Withington, 2000 This volume attempts to rediscover the richness of community in the early modern world through bringing together a range of fascinating material on the wealth of interactions that operated in the public sphere. Divided into three parts, the book looks at the importance of place, ranging from the Parish to communities of crime, to the place of political culture. Community and Networks: how individuals were bound into communities by religious, professional and social networks; the value of rhetoric in generating community from the King's English to the use of public as a rhetorical community. Explores the many ways in which people utilised communication space and symbols to constitute communities in early modern England Highly interdisciplinary incorporating literary material history religion medical political and cultural histories together will be of interest to specialists students and anyone concerned with the meaning and practice of community past and present No Idle Rich Jim McAloon,2002 Historical text which explores wealth and power in colonial southern New Zealand Author Jim McAloon a senior lecturer in history at Lincoln University draws on innovative research using wills business papers and biographical sources to investigate how the wealthy made their money the significance of family relationships and the role of women He also explores the influence of the rich on national and local politics and how they justified and maintained their position Text supplemented with black and white photographs maps and extensive notes and bibliography Social Proprieties David Postles,2006 This book combines theater and life in an attempt to consider how people inter acted in face to face situations in early modern England and to examine the wider implications of those relationships for social organization The research behind the text is interdisciplinary it draws on mid Tudor comedies the City comedies and early Stuart plays illustrating how the dramatic realism of those playwrights interrelates to the real social world The idea of this book to recreate the social structure from the way persons addressed one another and the variety of social descriptors employed is long overdue Richard Smith FBA Professor of Historical Demography Cambridge University It s a novel study of an intrinsically interesting subject drawn from sources never before systematically explored by social historians It will prove a useful contribution to early modern English social cultural history opening another window on the lives social networks and language of ordinary folk Margo Todd Walter H Annenberg Professor of History University of Pennsylvania David Postles was able to successfully combine research across the disciplinary boundaries between social history and literary and sociological analysis The result is a subtle and multivalent study of human conduct social position and the ways in which early modern subjects sought to fashioning their own identities and were in turn fashioned by others through the language of social exchange Greg Walker Professor of Early Modern Literature and Culture University of Leicester This book promises to be simultaneously a significant contribution to interdisciplinary scholarship across the fields of history literature and the social sciences and a work of abiding human interest Charles Phythian Adams Professor Emeritus of English Local History University of Leicester Liverpool 1660-1750 Diana E. Ascott,Fiona Lewis,Michael Power,2006 Liverpool 1660 1750explores the demographic economic social and political structures which made this British port city one of the world s greatest metropolises Liverpool was unique in the rate of its commercial development from the late 1600s through the 1900s but despite this fact little research has been done either on the characteristics of Liverpool s population at the beginning of the boom or its social structure Now for the first time a study exists that examines Liverpool s entire social stratum from enterprising merchants to the humble shipwrights and craftsmen usually hidden from the history books In a Queer Place Kate Chedgzoy,Emma Francis,Murray Pratt,2002 How do lesbian gay and queer identities construct a relation to the institutions that are widely understood to form the basis of social belonging Starting from diverse theoretical perspectives the eleven essays in this volume further scholarly debate in the study of gender and sexuality by exploring the relation of non hetero sexualities to the geographies poetics and legalities of belonging Queer studies emerged initially in academic and activist spheres in the US and the field continues to be dominated by texts and experiences marked by those particular contemporary cultural contexts By contrast In a Queer Place shines fresh light on the very different locations of homo sexualities within British and European contexts and thus represents an important extension of the scope of lesbian and gay studies Each essay draws on multiple sources including historical and legal documents the texts of literature and popular culture ethnographic writings and personal experience In their attention to cultural historical and textual specifics the contributors deploy significant new research to elaborate fresh understandings of key concerns in the study of the social meanings of gender and sexuality

A Fylde Country Practice Steven King, 2001      Scholars of Early Modern Studies, 1995      Joseph Wright of Derby in Liverpool Elizabeth E. Barker, Alex Kidson, Joseph Wright, Walker Art Gallery, 2007 This illustrated book examines Wright s decisive impact on the artistic climate of the expanding port town of Liverpool and on the other artists working there The Merseyside network of merchants bankers and amateur and professional artists that Wright encountered in the years around 1770 is identified as his true historical milieu The book serves as the catalogue of the exhibition of the same name shown at the Walker Art Gallery Liverpool and the Yale Center for British Art New Haven in 2007

8 BOOK JACKET      The Georgian Group Journal, 2003      The Local Historian, 2007      Ecclesiastical London Mary Erler, 2008-03-22 Continuing in the tradition established by previous volumes of the Records of Early English Drama Ecclesiastical London presents the ecclesiastically generated dramatic records of London notably its parishes and St Paul s Cathedral Among the topics addressed by editor Mary Erler are parish calendar customs such as hocking and maying parish pageant cars and costumes and the widespread popularity of boy bishops and of Palm Sunday prophets throughout London Erler also looks at St Paul s choristers theatre under master Sebastian Westcote and examines its controversial venue Among the many primary source materials examined in this volume are records from London s religious houses and parish accounts as well as episcopal visitation injunctions and other documents of control and authority at the time Ecclesiastical London concludes with ten invaluable appendices that look at subjects from Paul s Cross sermons to boy bishops This volume presents a significant amount of new information about the history of drama in London including discussion of a previously unknown performance by the clerks of London in 1391-92 and the 1540 inventory of Henry Walton which contains two substantial collections of costumes identifying Walton as an important theatrical entrepreneur of the mid sixteenth century This extensively researched volume is an important addition to the REED series and will be fascinating to those interested in the history of London and of the theatre in general

Pashas James Mather, 2009 Long before they came as occupiers the British were drawn to the Middle East by the fabled riches of its trade and the enlightened tolerance of its people The Pashas

merchants and travelers from Europe discovered an Islamic world that was alluring dynamic and diverse Ranging across two and a half centuries and through the great cities of Istanbul Aleppo and Alexandria James Mather tells the forgotten story of the men of the Levant Company who sought their fortunes in the Ottoman Empire Their trade brought to the region not only merchants but also ambassadors and envoys pilgrims and chaplains families and servants aristocratic tourists and roving antiquarians Unlike the nabobs who gathered their fortunes in Bengal they both respected and learned from the culture they encountered and their lives provide a fascinating insight into the meeting of East and West before the age of European imperialism Intriguing intimate and original Pashas brings to life an extraordinary tale of faraway visitors beguiled by a mysterious world of Islam

Technologies of Learning Bert De Munck, 2007 The importance of training and education is on the increase While the production of human capital is seen as a motor for a competitive economy skills and expertise proof to be necessary for social mobility Remarkably in conceiving modern forms of apprenticeship several mechanisms from the acien regime seem to return The difference between public and private initiative is disappearing education and training is being confused and in order to acquire generic skills as flexibility communicability self rule creativity and so on youngsters have to learn in context Even for maths scholars now talk of situated learning Before the advent of a formal schooling system training took place on the shop floor under the roof of a master The apprentice not only worked but also lived in his master s house and was thus trained and educated at the same time In cities this system was formally complemented by an official apprenticeship system prescribing a minimum term to serve and an obligatory masterpiece for those who wanted to become masters themselves Traditionally historians see this as an archaic and backward way of training yet this book s aim is to show that is was instead a very flexible and dynamic system perfectly in tune with the demands of an early modern economy In order to understand it fully however we should differentiate the informal training system organised via a free market of indentures on the one hand and the institutionalised system of craft guilds on the other In Antwerp early modern guilds had a project of emancipating their members They didn t simply produce certain skills but through a system of quality marks defended the honour of craftsmen This is the difference with current practices By representing hands on skills as superior guilds supplied a sort of symbolic capital for workers
