International Labor ,1974 International Labour Migration International Labour Office,2010 There are almost 200 million migrants in the world today The majority of people leaving their home countries are migrating for work and almost half of them are women The contribution of these workers is evident yet many work in unacceptable conditions denied access to social protection and their labour rights With its mandate on all labour issues the ILO has built up a wealth of knowledge on migration for employment in terms of both original research and the rich experience of its Members governments employers and trade unions in dealing with migrant workers Drawing on these unique resources this book offers a comprehensive and accessible overview of international labour migration and the ILO s efforts to protect migrant workers through a rights based approach This book gives new insights into the factors that motivate people to seek work outside their country of origin and the significant development effects on both origin and destination countries Exposing the often limited access of migrant workers to their fundamental rights at work the book describes in detail the international norms that have evolved to protect migrant workers and ensure decent work for all It reflects on existing and potential international governance structures and addresses linkages between migration and development The book reviews the ILO s Multilateral Framework on Labour Migration and discusses its role in improving policy making and upgrading international cooperation in the area of labour migration Book jacket
