Midwife To The Fairies New And Selected Stories:

Midwife to the Fairies Éilís Ní Dhuibhne,2003 Eilis Ni Dhuibhne is generally considered to be one of Ireland s finest practitioners of the short story This book brings together nine of her best stories from her first two collections Blood and Water and Eating Women is Not Recommended as well as three brand new stories Ranging from the ultra realistic Some Hours in the Life of a Witch to the surreal fantasy world of Fulfillment and The Wife of Bath the stories describe ordinary and not so ordinary life and the lives of women in particular in the feminist and post feminist eras in Ireland The Irish Short Story at the Turn of the Twenty-First Century Madalina Armie,2022-12-30 In the mid 1990s Ireland was experiencing the best of times The Celtic Tiger seemed to instil in the national consciousness that poverty was a problem of the past The impressive economic performance ensured that the Republic occupied one of the top positions among the world s economic powers During the boom dissident voices continuously criticised what they considered to be a mirage identifying the precariousness of its structures and foretelling its eventual crash The 2008 recession proved them right Throughout this time the Irish contemporary short story expressed distrust Enabled by its capacity to reflect change with immediacy and dexterity the short story saw through the smokescreen created by the Celtic Tiger discourse of well being It reinterpreted and captured the worst and the best of the country and became a bridge connecting tradition and modernity The major objective of this book is to analyse the interactions between fiction and reality during this period in Ireland by studying the short stories written by old and emergent voices published between the birth of the Celtic Tiger in 1995 up to its immediate aftermath in 2013

The Female and the Species Maureen O'Connor,2010 Describing the Irish as female and bestial is a practice dating back to the twelfth century while for women inside and outside of Ireland their association with children animals and other savages has had a long history A link among systems of oppression has been asserted in recent decades by some feminists but linking women s rights with animal advocacy can be controversial This strategy responds to the fact that women s inferiority has been alleged and justified by appropriating them to nature an appropriation that colonialism has also practiced on its racial and cultural others Nineteenth century feminists braved such associations for instance often asserting vegetarianism as a form of rebellion against the dominant culture Vegetarianism and animal advocacy have uniquely Irish implications This study examines a tradition of Irish women writers deploying the natural as a gesture of resistance to paternalist regulation of female energies and as a self consciously elaborated stage for the performance of Irish identity They call into question the violent dislocations and disavowals required by figurative practices particularly when utilizing Irish topography an already unnatural cultural construct shaped by conflict and suffering A History of the Irish Short Story Heather Ingman,2009-05-14 Though the short story is often regarded as central to the Irish canon this text was the first comprehensive study of the genre for many years Heather Ingman traces the development of the modern short story in Ireland from its beginnings in the nineteenth century to the present day Her study analyses the material circumstances surrounding publication examining the role of magazines and editors in shaping the form Ingman incorporates recent critical thinking on the short story traces international connections and gives a central part to Irish women's short stories. Each chapter concludes with a detailed analysis of key stories from the period discussed featuring Joyce, Edna O'Brien and John McGahern among others. With its comprehensive bibliography and biographies of authors this volume will be a key work of reference for scholars and students both of Irish fiction and of the modern short story as a genre.

Anthologisation and Irish Short Fiction

Paul Delaney, 2025-03-28 This original new study explores the recent flowering of short fiction in Ireland analysing the production, dissemination and reception of the short form in the twenty first century and reading contemporary short stories in their many configurations and guises. This volume covers twenty five years of Irish writing beginning in late 1997 with the establishment of the innovative literary periodical The Stinging Fly and concludes in 2022. The book is structured in five parts with each part focusing on a particular mode of publication: periodicals, single author volumes, short story cycles, edited anthologies and small or independent presses. Each part includes a series of case studies while also engaging with a diverse range of short story criticism and theory both comparative and Irish centered. Anthologisation and Irish Short Fiction brings different writers at distinct stages of their careers into conversation and This volume aims to illuminate the contemporaneous value of this body of work, its innovative and varied use and the diversity of its practice. Particular attention is also shown to the fluidity of the short form to its capacity to disrupt and arrest and to its progressive writerly potential.

Irish

Literature in the Celtic Tiger Years 1990 to 2008 Susan Cahill, 2011-04-01 When Irish culture and economics underwent rapid changes during the Celtic Tiger Years Anne Enright, Colum McCann and others Ní Dhuibhne began writing. Now that period of Irish history has closed this study uncovers how their writing captured that unique historical moment. By showing how Ní Dhuibhne's novels act as considered arguments against attempts to disavow the past, how McCann's protagonists come to terms with their history and how Enright's fiction explores connections and relationships with the female body, Susan Cahill's study pinpoints common concerns for contemporary Irish writers: the relationship between the body, memory and history between generations and between past and present. Cahill is able to raise wider questions about Irish culture by looking specifically at how writers engage with the body. In exploring the writers' concern with embodied histories, related questions concerning gender, race and Irishness are brought to the fore. Such interrogations of corporeality alongside history are imperative, making this a significant contribution to ongoing debates of feminist theory in Irish Studies.
