It is important to note that the results of the present study are not inconsistent with the findings of other studies. For example, a study by Smith et al. (2001) found that the use of a decision support system (DSS) in a medical diagnosis task led to improved performance and reduced errors. Similarly, a study by Jones et al. (2002) found that the use of a DSS in a financial analysis task led to improved performance and reduced errors. These findings are consistent with the findings of the present study, which suggest that the use of a DSS in a medical diagnosis task led to improved performance and reduced errors.
