

Urban Land Use Models

- Geographers have put together models of land use to show how a 'typical' city is laid out.

Burgess or concentric zone model

- Cities grow outwards in a series of concentric rings of land-use.
- Center is the oldest and the newest part on the outer edge.
- The quality and size of housing increases with distance from the CBD.
- The quality and size of houses increases with distance from the CBD.

The Hoyt model

- Modified from Burgess model following the development of public transport.
- It suggests that transport and physical features were important, with industrial areas developing outwards in sectors along main transport routes (roads, rivers and canals) and housing growing up around these.
