Monasteries In The Landscape:

Monasteries in the Landscape Michael Aston,2000    Monasteries in the Landscape Mick Aston,2009-09-15 The beginnings and development of Monasteries in the Landscape    Monastic Landscapes James Bond,2004 This text covers the full impact of medieval monasteries on the local economy from improving agriculture managing woodland draining marshes and planting orchards to founding new towns replanning villages constructing mills and fisheries and mining and quarrying    Ecclesiastical Landscapes in Medieval Europe: An Archaeological Perspective José Carlos Sánchez-Pardo,Emmet Marron,Maria Crângaci Tiplic,2020-07-02 By presenting case studies from across Eastern and Western Medieval Europe this volume aims to open up a Europe wide debate on the variety of relations and contexts between ecclesiastical buildings and their surrounding landscapes between the 5th and 15th centuries AD    A Monastic Landscape Dr Breda Lynch,2010-11-05 This publication is primarily a study of the various aspects of the use and situation of the land held by the Cistercian order in medieval Leinster A number of key topics form the central elements of this study These include an examination of the physical landscape into which the Cistercian order settled and the changes that occurred within that landscape during the later medieval era The book examines whether the location of the monasteries indicated any underlying nuances or if the monks were happy to settle wherever they were given land The involvement of the Cistercian order in the agricultural and economic life of Leinster is also examined A breakdown of the acreage and land type that the monasteries possessed is presented and in the final section the state of the monasteries immediately prior to the dissolution of the religious houses in the period 1536 41 is determined With regard to this final section the areas of interest are in relation to the physical remains of the monasteries the productivity or otherwise of the associated lands the organisation and location of that land and the general attitude of the Cistercian monks at that particular time in history There are many different areas of study that were examined These include the identification of the lands the land type and trends or differences in this type when compared with other parts of the country The organisation of the land and the uses of it in relation to the monastery are an essential aspect of the work and is possible to identify economic and social change by discussing the uses of that land The identification of granges and grange buildings was not originally intended as part of this work however research has allowed some evidence to emerge in relation to these buildings and is included In relation to the approach a short chapter outlining the origins of monasticism and the emergence of the Cistercian Order is included A brief outline of the governing rules of the Cistercians is included in chapter one as is a short discussion on the spread of the order up to its arrival in Ireland The second chapter is merely intended to give an idea of the pattern of the distribution of the Cistercian monasteries in Ireland Most of the information is in table form giving the monastery its location date of foundation and founder From this a number of observations are be made The principal area of study is Leinster therefore chapter three deals with this territory discussing its boundaries both internal and external and the kingdoms that made up medieval

Leinster The fact that the monasteries of Leinster were situated in very well defined territories means that although the study is of Leinster as a whole these smaller somewhat independent units were still an important element in both the landscape and the social framework of the period As such it was necessary to ensure that each of these units was represented in any category of study The location of the monasteries is the focus of the second portion of chapter three Both the natural and man made features of the landscape are examined here The proximity of road and route ways to the monasteries has been mapped and discussed and any trends or patterns commented upon Chapter four deals with the monastic complex and the associated features It discusses the way in which the monastery and its lands were organised and the reasons for this This chapter deals more with the day to day requirements of the monks and indicates how both the land and the buildings within the complex were equally important and key elements in the functioning of the monasteries Following from chapter four and keeping earlier comments in mind the next portion of the work deals with other land that particular monasteries may have held at any time from foundation up to the time when the extents of the monastic possessions were drawn up Instead of looking Saints and Monasteries in the Landscape Jeff Doolittle,2005 of their buildings and estates on the surrounding region from the Anglo Saxon period to the present day. The authors trace these relationships through time with new studies of the changing landscape the monastery precincts and the surviving structures themselves detailing how the historical archaeology of the sites reveals how the churches and their communities were rooted in the landscapes of Northumbria but flourished through their links with other parts of Britain and Europe. Researchers from many different backgrounds contributed to the project using aerial geophysical geoarchaeological and palaeoenvironmental surveys and digital mapping to examine the monasteries and surrounding lands. This book reveals not only the link between the churches and the region's political and economic history but also demonstrates how their cultural significance for local people in northeast England has changed over time. Monastic Europe Edel

Bhreathnach, Małgorzata Krasnodębska-D'Aughton, Keith Smith, 2019. Monasticism became part of Europe from the early period of Christianity on the continent and developed into a powerful institution that had an effect on the greater church on wider society and on the landscape. Monastic communities were as diverse as the societies in which they lived following a variety of rules building monasteries influenced by common ideals and yet diverse in their regionalism and contributing to the economic and spiritual well being inside and outside their precincts. This interdisciplinary volume presents the diversity of medieval European monasticism with a particular emphasis on its impact on its immediate environs. Geographically it covers from the far west in Ireland, Scotland and Wales through Scandinavia south to the Iberian Peninsula and onto the continent to the east in Romania. Drawing on archaeological art and architectural, textual and topographical evidence the contributors explore how monastic communities were formed, how they created a landscape of monasticism, how they wove their identities with those around them and how they interacted with all levels of society to leave a lasting imprint on European towns and rural landscapes.

The focus is on the latter by describing the large variety of traditional cultural landscapes having evolved through centuries or even millennia by the use of the natural, terrestrial and aquatic resources. Those cultural landscapes encompass pasture, agroforestry, terraced irrigation, coastal, monastic and sacred landscapes as well as lake, river and saltscapes. The restoration of low input land use systems which often carry a high biodiversity on the species, ecosystem and landscape level as well as agrobiodiversity and agrodiversity is outlined. The restoration of multifunctional and diverse landscapes however is not only an ecological issue but encompasses many socio-economic aspects such as e.g. the revitalization of villages, eco-tourism, healthy food production, infrastructure and rural urban partnerships. Global environmental problems which are related to urbanization and the intensification of the use of land and water resources are comprehensively outlined. Land abandonment which occurs on all continents is qualitatively and quantitatively assessed and the consequences for natural and cultural heritage loss is highlighted. With the presentation of current rural development and landscape conservation strategies on the national as well as international level the topic reflects the high significance of environmental policy on the global scale The global implementation of natural and cultural heritage conservation is for example given by the UNESCO World Heritage Sites National Parks Biosphere Reserves Globally Important Agricultural Heritage Sites High Nature Value Farmland and the Satoyama initiative However also the every day landscapes can contribute to biodiversity and strong sustainability This comprehensive compendium based on about 4 000 references of scientific studies literature reviews project reports and environmental policy papers is thought for all students scholars and stakeholders from multifaceted disciplines interested in multifunctional cultural landscapes and how traditions and innovation on the landscape level can be merged for a sustainable future on our planet Case studies from all over the world are presented which can be used in Higher Education or to demonstrate the numerous approaches of sustainable rural development
