Culture in English Paul Skandera, 2008-08-22 The proposition that there is a correlation between language and culture or culture specific ways of thinking can be traced back to the views of Herder and von Humboldt in the late 18th and early 19th centuries It is generally accepted today that a language especially its lexicon influences its speakers cultural patterns of thought and perception in various ways for example through a culture specific segmentation of the extralinguistic reality the frequency of occurrence of particular lexical items or the existence of keywords or key word combinations revealing core cultural values The aim of this volume is to explore the cultural dimension of a wide range of preconstructed or semi preconstructed word combinations in English The 17 papers of the volume are divided into four sections focusing on particular lexemes e g enjoy and its collocates types of word combinations e g proverbs and similes use related varieties such as the language of tourism or answering machine messages and user related varieties such as Aboriginal English or African English The sections are preceded by a prologue tracing the development of the study of formulaic language and followed by an epilogue which draws together the threads laid out in the various papers The relation between language and culture in general has been explored in a number of important works over the past ten years However the study of the relation between English phraseology and culture in particular has been largely neglected This volume is the first book length publication devoted entirely to this topic Stories and Analogies in Cognitive Behaviour Therapy Paul Blenkiron, 2011-09-23 An

Urofsky,1997 Affirmative action continues to be one of the most hotly contested issues in America Volatile and divisive the debates over its legitimacy have inspired a number of reverse discrimination suits in the federal courts Like the landmark 1978 Bakke decision most of these have focused on preferential treatment given racial minorities In Johnson v Santa Clara however the central issue was gender not race discrimination and the Supreme Court s decision in that case marked a resounding victory for women in the work force Johnson v Santa Clara involved two people who in 1980 competed for a dispatcher position with the transportation department of Santa Clara County California Paul Johnson had more experience and slightly higher test scores but Diane Joyce was given the job based on affirmative action An irate Johnson sued the county and won only to have the decision reversed in appellate court That reversal was subsequently upheld in the Supreme Court s 1987 decision reaffirming that it was legitimate for employers to consider gender in hiring Preeminent legal historian Melvin Urofsky proves an exemplary guide through the complexities of this case as he takes us from the workplace through the various levels of our federal court system Balancing the particulars of the case with an overview of constitutional law and judicial process he creates a model legal history that is both appealing and enlightening for the non scholar Urofsky is especially good at highlighting the fundamental human drama of this case and shows how Johnson and Joyce were simply ordinary people each with valid reasons for their actions but both ultimately caught up in legal and social issues that reached well beyond their own lives Affirmative Action on Trial pointedly addresses the issue of sex discrimination and the broader controversy over the place of affirmative action in American society The latter continues to generate headlines like those that followed the 1996 Supreme Court decision to let stand a lower court ruling that race cannot be used as a determination for admission to academic programs More recently several states have even taken steps to end affirmative action altogether While it s hard to tell how such actions will ultimately impact affirmative action there s no question that the rulings in cases like Johnson v Santa Clara will continue to guide and influence the debates both inside and outside the courtroom Spatula ,1910 *On Dutch waterways: the cruise of the s.s.
