Monitoring Rocky Shores Steven N. Murray, Richard Ambrose, Megan N. Dethier, 2006-04-03 Intertidal ecologists have been struggling with how to adequately monitor the tremendous diversity and heterogeneity of rocky shores for decades Finally three of the most experienced and established people in the field have done it Monitoring Rocky Shores will serve as THE central reference guide for scientists intent on understanding the complexities of intertidal ecology John Pearse coauthor of Animals Without Backbones The incredibly high taxic morphological ecological as well as biotic diversity of rocky shores makes them ideal sites for ecological studies however this same diversity also presents innumerable challenges Monitoring Rocky Shores is long overdue in helping investigators tackle these innumerable challenges This book provides a broad and important introduction to the habitat the animals the methods and the analyses required constructing informed hypotheses and scenarios for life on rocky shores David R Lindberg Museum of Paleontology co editor of Phylogeny and Evolution of the Mollusca

Anthony, 2008-11-21 The last five years have been marked by rapid technological and analytical developments in the study of shore processes and in the comprehension of shore deposits and forms and shoreline change over time These developments have generated a considerable body of literature in a wide range of professional journals thus illustrating the cross disciplinary nature of shore processes and the palaeo environmental dimension of shore change The justification of the book lies in bringing together these developments using an objective approach that synthesises current advances technical progress in the analysis of shores and shore processes contradictory interpretations and potential advances using future generation developments in techniques The book provides a comprehensive state of the art presentation of shore processes and deposits across ranges of wave energy and tide range environments sediment supply and textural conditions sea level change exceptional events and longer term climate change based on the most recently published literature in the marine sciences The book insists on the nested time and spatial scales through which are inter linked shore processes and deposits thus providing a better understanding of the way shores change over time The approach is thus cross disciplinary and gap bridging between processes and deposits between analytical techniques and between timescales The audience is from graduate level upwards and the book is intended as a comprehensive reference source for professionals in a wide range of coastal science fields geologists sedimentologists geomorphologists oceanographers engineers managers archaeologists Aimed at graduates and specialists interested in coastal science Presents background research recent developments and future trends Written by a leading scholar and industry expert Fate and Effects of Oil in Marine Ecosystems J. Kuiper, W.J. van den Brink, 2012-12-06 A Rorsch Member of the TNO Board of Management Like all living creatures man has from the very outset influenced the environment Initially the traces of human activity were hardly noticeable and so were their effects on the equilibrium of the ecosystem as such However as soon as man learned how to use tools he was able to influence his surroundings more drastically and to proliferate more rapidly As a matter of fact that is the time when things went wrong because a process was started off which was to continue with ever increasing speed and on an ever increasing scale The present condition of nature as a result of the activities of mankind is generally known Whether it is an accident with a nuclear plant or the vanishing of tropical rain forests acid deposition or the pollution of soil water and air environmental disasters almost seem to be the order of the day It is striking that with all these more or less arbitrary examples the provision of energy plays a role In this respect one can add an even more important energy carrier to the list namely crude oil Marine Renewable Energy Technology and Environmental Interactions Mark A. Shields, Andrew I.L.
