Mortal Arguments:

Mill (Arguments of the Philosophers) John Skorupski, Professor John M. Skorupski, 2002 Plausible Argument in Everyday Conversation Douglas N. Walton, 1992-01-01 This book provides a practical and accessible way of evaluating good and bad arguments used in everyday conversations by applying normative models of dialectical interactive argumentation where two parties reason together in an orderly and cooperative way. Using case studies the author analyzes correct and incorrect uses of argumentation on controversial issues that engage the reader's interest while illustrating points in a practical way. Walton gives clear explanations of the most common errors and tricky deceptions traditionally called fallacies that can trip up an unwary arguer Your Research Project Nicholas S. R. Walliman, Nicholas Walliman, 2005 In this new edition of Your Research Project Nicholas S R Walliman has made this bestselling book even better with the addition of a number of new features whilst retaining all the benefits of the original. New features include more elaboration on the differing needs of masters and PhD students a new overview of the entire research chronology from start to finish student checklists throughout a new chapter on research ethics new sections on critical reading skills and compiling literature reviews examples from a wide range of disciplines and a student glossary Is That a Fact? - Second Edition Mark Battersby, 2016-03-04 How much should we trust the polls on the latest electoral campaign When a physician tells us that a diagnosis of cancer is 90% certain or a nutritionist tells us what is healthy to eat what should we believe Questions such as these are greatly important yet many of us have only a vague sense of how to answer them In Is That a Fact Mark Battersby aims not only to explain how to identify misleading statistics and research but also to give readers the understanding necessary to evaluate and use statistical information in their own decision making This second edition is revised and updated throughout and includes a new chapter on weighing risk in personal and public decision making Understanding Arguments Robert J. Fogelin, Walter Sinnott-Armstrong, 1991 Is That a Fact? Revised Edition Mark Battersby, 2013-06-06 We are inundated by scientific and statistical information but what should we believe How much should we trust the polls on the latest electoral campaign When a physician tells us that a diagnosis of cancer is 90% certain or a scientist informs us that recent studies support global warming what should we conclude How can we acquire reliable statistical information Once we have it how do we evaluate it Despite the importance of these questions to our lives many of us have only a vague idea of how to answer them In this admirably clear and engaging book Mark Battersby provides a practical guide to thinking critically about scientific and statistical information The goal of the book is not only to explain how to identify misleading statistical information but also to give readers the understanding necessary to evaluate and use statistical and statistically based scientific information in their own decision making Arguments: Deductive Logic Exercises Howard Posse, 1971 The Art of Debate Warren Choate, 1922 The Elements of Logic Robert Latta, Alexander Macbeth, 1929 The Making of Arguments John Hays Gardiner, 1912 In the Writers' Words
