Classics for the Masses Pauline Fairclough, 2016-01-01 Musicologist Pauline Fairclough explores the evolving role of music in shaping the cultural identity of the Soviet Union in a revelatory work that counters certain hitherto accepted views of an unbending unchanging state policy of repression censorship and dissonance that existed in all areas of Soviet artistic endeavor Newly opened archives from the Leninist and Stalinist eras have shed new light on Soviet concert life demonstrating how the music of the past was used to help mold and deliver cultural policy how undesirable repertoire was weeded out during the 1920s and how Russian and non Russian composers such as Mozart Tchaikovsky Wagner Bach and Rachmaninov were canonized during different distinct periods in Stalinist culture Fairclough s fascinating study of the ever shifting Soviet musical political landscape identifies 1937 as the start of a cultural Cold War rather than occurring post World War Two as is often maintained while documenting the efforts of musicians and bureaucrats during this period to keep musical channels open between Russia and the West

English Accents Christiana Payne, 2018-01-18 In the century following the foundation of the Royal Academy in 1768 British art had an international reputation prints spread knowledge of the work of British artists around the globe and it was widely seen as the product of a modern commercial society and much admired by artists as diverse as Goya in Spain Delacroix in France and Bierstadt in America In recent years scholars working on this period have become increasingly aware of the international context of their subject but there has been no systematic analysis of the reception of British art abroad This collection of essays looks at the uses made of the paintings of Reynolds Hogarth Lawrence and their contemporaries on the continent of Europe and in the colonies and ex colonies of Australia and America The authors go beyond the simple issue of influence to consider how ideas and artistic conventions originating in the British Isles were adapted appropriated or resisted in these new environments In the process some surprising views of British art emerge demonstrating how a multi faceted view from the outside can correct and enrich the narrative produced within a national school and revealing some of the important connections that are obscured when art is studied as it so often is within narrow national boundaries

Reflections on Stalinism J. Arch Getty, Lewis H. Siegelbaum, 2024-06-15 Reflections on Stalinism distills decades of historical thought and research bringing together twelve senior scholars of Soviet history who began their careers during the Cold War to examine their views of Stalinism They present insights into the role of personality in statecraft the social underpinnings of dictatorship and state terrorism historians attachments to their subjects historical causality the applicability of Marxist categories to Soviet history the relationship of Soviet history to post Soviet Russia and more Essays address the
