Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce,1920 Miscellaneous Series ,1920 Measuring Up in Education Steven Stolz,R. Scott Webster,2020-05-21 Cultures of measurement are often considered to dominate educational practices to the degree that as Biesta 2010 has identified in Good Education in an Age of Measurement we no longer measure what we value but rather we have become conditioned to value what is measured A clear example of this occurs when institutions and staff teach to the test by emphasising narrow conceptions of learning and of knowledge simply because the consequences of high stakes assessments have important implications regarding funding resources and even tenure This collection explores via various philosophical means how valuable educational practices can occur within and beyond cultures of measurement What seems to be required is for practitioners in education to regain their relationship to the overall purposes of education such as the furthering of justice and democracy for both individual students and societies as a whole Such a reconnection has the potential to re-humanise curricular experiences for students which may have become dehumanised through particular cultures of measurement It is argued that certain legitimate measures can advance justice and democracy and so careful attention must be assigned to their validity and value This book was originally published as a special issue of Educational Philosophy and Theory Does Measurement Measure Up? John M. Henshaw,2006-05-05 Henshaw examines the ways in which measurement makes sense or creates nonsense Accountability in Higher Education Bjorn Stensaker,Lee Harvey,2010-09-13 The latest volume in the Routledge International Studies in Higher Education series Accountability in Higher Education takes an in depth look at accountability initiatives around the world Various evaluations reporting schemes and indicator systems have been initiated both to inform the public about higher education performance and to help transform universities and colleges and improve their functioning This edited collection provides a comparative analysis of the promises perils and paradoxes of accountability and the potential effect on power structures and higher education autonomy trust and the legitimacy of the sector Part I describes how accountability is perceived and understood in different regions of the world identifies some of the most common elements in established accountability initiatives especially related to quality assurance and provides direction for possible future development Part II focuses on responses to new demands for accountability at institutional national and international levels and provides practical guidance for handling accountability going forward emphasizing the dynamic relationship between international development government strategies and
