A Monastic Landscape Dr Breda Lynch,2010-11-05 This publication is primarily a study of the various aspects of the use and situation of the land held by the Cistercian order in medieval Leinster A number of key topics form the central elements of this study These include an examination of the physical landscape into which the Cistercian order settled and the changes that occurred within that landscape during the later medieval era The book examines whether the location of the monasteries indicated any underlying nuances or if the monks were happy to settle wherever they were given land The involvement of the Cistercian order in the agricultural and economic life of Leinster

Inhabiting the Landscape

Nicola Whyte,2009 The discipline of landscape history has recently taken a new turn away from the analysis of past land use and environments towards an understanding of landscape as a social construct This book is a significant step along this exciting new road Focusing on Norfolk in the post medieval centuries Nicola Whyte recaptures the essential character of ordinary people's experience of landscape She shows how perceptions were deeply rooted in the comprehension of material antiquities the annual round of work public events and religious ritual and the complex web of rights and jurisdictions mapped out in the fields People valued and gave meaning to the landscape for a wide range of reasons many of them unconnected with the economic potential of the land Landscape features outside the confines of the church and the graveyard pilgrimage routes crosses wells and springs played an important part in the ideological shift of the Reformation Parish boundaries and in particular the annual ritual of beating the bounds at Rogationtide reveal much about the shifting pattern of local allegiances and competition over resources Places of execution and the graves of suicides were mnemonic spectacles defining both geographical and behavioural limits The local history of enclosure and rights to commons is the story of nascent capitalism in rural England a clash of values between modern productivity and ancient tradition that involved the reinterpretation and renegotiation of the past Informed by the latest archaeological theory this book shows how landscape development was a dynamic experiential process in which world views changed as well as woods hedges and fields
