Matabele Mission A Selection From The:

Women and Missions: Past and Present Shirley Ardener, Fiona Bowie, Deborah Kirkwood, 2021-02-25 This collection of essays by eminent anthropologists, missiologists and historians explores the hitherto neglected topic of women missionaries and the effect of Christian missionary activity upon women. The book consists of two parts. The first part looks at 19th century women missionaries as presented in literature at the backgrounds and experience of women in the mission field and at the attitudes of missionary societies towards their female workers. Although they are traditionally presented as wives and support workers, it becomes apparent that on the contrary women missionaries often played a culturally important role. The second and longest section asks whether women missionaries are indeed a special case and provides some fascinating studies of the impact of Christian missions on women in both historical material and a wealth of contemporary material. Of particular value is the perspective of those who were themselves objects of missionary activity and who reflected upon this experience. Women actively absorbed and adapted the teachings of the Christian missionaries and Western models are seen to be utilized and developed in sometimes unexpected ways.

Each of the 50 volumes will be available to buy individually and these are organized into regional sub groups: East Central Africa, North Eastern Africa, Southern Africa, West Central Africa, Western Africa and Central Africa, Belgian Congo. The volumes are supplemented with maps available to view on routledge.com or available as a pdf from the publishers.

The Church in Africa, 1450-1950 Adrian Hastings, 1995-01-05 I can merely admire his courage in tackling so complex and difficult a subject. He should succeed in stimulating a fresh generation of research. This well-written, intelligent and lively study will greatly stimulate anyone fortunate enough to read it. Christianity provided the constitutive identity of historic Ethiopia. From the sixteenth century and increasingly from the nineteenth it entered decisively into the life and culture of an increasing number of other African peoples. In the course of the twentieth century African Christians have become a major part of the world Church and arguably modern African history as a whole is not intelligible without its powerful Christian element Yet despite the great advance in African historiography over the last forty years this is the first major volume to consider the historical development and character of the Christian Church in Africa as a whole linking together Ehtiopia Orthodoxy Roman Catholicism Protestantism and the numerousm Independent churches of modern times The book focuses throughout on the role of coversion the shaping of Church life and its relationship to traditional values and the impact of political power Professor Hastings also compares the relation of Christian history to the comprable development of Islam in Africa
