Multilateral Agencies Ngos:

Multilateral Agencies and Non-governmental Organisations Brian Pratt, Jamie Pratt, Adrian Stone, 1994-01 Since the mid 1980s there has been a marked growth in the collaboration by multilateral agencies MLAs with both Northern and Southern NGOs This paper considers the changing history of NGO MLA relations programming issues that affect the effectiveness of NGO MLA collaborations the impact of funding arrangements the policy and actual practice of the key MLAs towards NGOs in certain sectors and the opportunities and threats to NGOs in working with MLAs The paper concludes by giving an overall assessment of the relationship outlining issues of concern to both Northern and Southern NGOs and by pointing out possible future developments Delegation and Agency in International Organizations Darren G.

Hawkins, David A. Lake, Daniel L. Nielson, Michael J. Tierney, 2006-09-14 Why do states delegate certain tasks and responsibilities to international organizations rather than acting unilaterally or cooperating directly Furthermore to what extent do states continue to control IOs once authority has been delegated Examining a variety of different institutions including the World Trade Organization the United Nations and the European Commission this book explores the different methods that states employ to ensure their interests are being served and identifies the problems involved with monitoring and managing IOs The contributors suggest that it is not inherently more difficult to design effective delegation mechanisms at international level than at domestic level and drawing on principal agent theory help explain the variations that exist in the extent to which states are willing to delegate to IOs They argue that IOs are neither all evil nor all virtuous but are better understood as bureaucracies that can be controlled to varying degrees by their political masters Aid John Authors DeMarco and Healey Walsh introduce public health concepts from an evidence based perspective allowing students to make connections between data and practice decisions. Because evidence based practice guides quality performance improvements, the authors teach students to gather, assess, analyze, apply, and evaluate evidence derived from epidemiology and other sources for making public health practice decisions and for planning the care of individuals, families, and groups in the community. Examples assist students in interpreting and applying statistical data. The authors integrate timely topics, major challenges to nursing practice in the community, community and public health nursing specialties, cultural diversity, health disparities, globalism, epidemiology, and basic biostatistics, and ethical considerations. Preventative immunizations, political proactiveness, advanced practice preparation, sustainable health goals, ebola, telehealth, opioid epidemic, veterans, and LGBQ as a underserved populations. iPrepare, health literacy, health promotion conferences, and Healthy People 2020. Special attention will be given to add additional features and ancillaries that allow students to actively learn Healthy People 2020 and students will complete short active learning activities. Questions will allow students to apply the goals to real life scenarios. This study answers this question from a public management perspective. Such a perspective has rarely been used in the study of international organizations. In particular the theoretical topics of governance, program management and coordination in and among UN organizations are reviewed. This study deals in particular with the United Nations Populations Fund UNFPA and the United Nations Children's Fund UNICEF and their coordinated behaviour in the Joint Consultative Group on Policy JCGP. This work is of interest and will be of use for managers in multilateral organizations and academics studying the functioning of these organizations.
