New Readings In Theatre History:

New Readings in Theatre History Jacqueline S. Bratton, 2003-11-27 Over the last two hundred years some important ways of understanding theatre history have been undervalued or ignored by scholars Leading theatre historian Jacky Bratton employs new approaches to examine and challenge this development and to discover how theatre history has been chronicled and how it is interpreted Using a series of case studies from nineteenth century British theatre Bratton examines the difference between the existence of the drama plays and play literature and the stage performance theatre building and attendance By rejecting literary history Bratton experiments with other ways of analysing the past and the ways that have actually seemed relevant to the people on stage This book suggests new histories of theatrical story telling of performing families and of the disregarded dramatic energy of Victorian entertainment As a result we gain a new perspective on theatre history not only for the Romantic and Victorian periods but for the discipline overall Canadian Theatre History Don Rubin, 2004 A collection of original documents and publications by Canadian theatre professions and cultural commentators

Oxford History of Classical Reception in English Literature David Hopkins, Charles Martindale, Norman Vance, Rita Copeland, Patrick Cheney, Jennifer Wallace, Philip R. Hardie, 2012 The Oxford History of Classical Reception OHCREL is designed to offer a comprehensive investigation of the numerous and diverse ways in which literary texts of the classical world have stimulated responses and refashioning by English writers Covering the full range of English literature from the early Middle Ages to the present day OHCREL both synthesizes existing scholarship and presents cutting edge new research employing an international team of expert contributors for each of the five volumes OHCREL endeavours to interrogate rather than inertly reiterate conventional assumptions about literary periods the processes of canon formation and the relations between literary and non literary discourse It conceives of reception as a complex process of dialogic exchange and rather than offering large cultural generalizations it engages in close critical analysis of literary texts It explores in detail the ways in which English writers engagement with classical literature casts as much light on the classical originals as it does on the English writers own cultural context This fourth volume and second to appear in the series covers the years 1790 1880 and explores romantic and Victorian receptions of the classics Noting the changing fortunes of particular classical authors and the influence of developments in archaeology aesthetics and education it traces the interplay between classical and nineteenth century perceptions of gender class religion and the politics of republic and empire in chapters engaging with many of the major writers of this period

Writing the History of the British Stage Richard Schoch, 2016-09-12 This is the first book on British theatre historiography It traces the practice of theatre history from its origins in the Restoration to its emergence as an academic discipline in the early twentieth century In this compelling revisionist study Richard Schoch reclaims the deep history of British theatre history valorizing the usually overlooked scholarship undertaken by antiquarians booksellers bibliographers journalists and theatrical insiders none of whom considered themselves to be professional historians Drawing together deep archival research close readings of historical texts from the seventeenth eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and an awareness of contemporary debates about disciplinary practice Schoch overturns received interpretations of British theatre historiography and shows that the practice and the diverse practitioners of theatre history were far more complicated and far more sophisticated than we had realised His book is a landmark contribution to how theatre historians today can understand their own history
