New Perspectives On Political Advertising:

New Perspectives on Political Advertising Lynda Lee Kaid, Dan D. Nimmo, Keith R. Sanders, 1986 This volume is part of a series of anthologies which cover various topics in the study, teaching, and practice of political communication. The purpose of the series is to make available to researchers, teachers, students, and other specialists findings, analyses, and commentaries which are representative of current scholarship in the rapidly evolving field of political communication. The focus of this volume on political advertising, its history, forms, styles, settings, uses, and effects, seems appropriate because there are few, if any, forms of political communication which are more prevalent, more expensive, more highly developed, and which have been the object of more controversy and less serious scholarship than political advertising, especially the political commercial made for television.

Political Campaign Communication Judith S. Trent, Robert V. Friedenberg, Robert E. Denton Jr., 2011-08-16 Now in its seventh edition, Political Campaign Communication provides a realistic understanding of the strategic and tactical communication practices utilized in contemporary political campaigns. It draws on a wealth of examples from local to national political campaigns and communication theory to illustrate principles and practices of campaigns such as functions, stages, communicative styles, public speaking, debates, interpersonal communication, political advertising, and the use of the internet and new media. Trent, Friedenberg, and Denton's classic text has been updated to reflect recent election campaigns, including the 2010 congressional elections and the initial stages of the 2012 presidential election. Many sections now focus on the most recent presidential elections and the campaigns of Barack Obama and John McCain. In addition, the authors have examined the expanding role of the internet in political campaigns. Political Campaign Communication continues to be a classroom favorite, a thoroughly researched, insightful, and reader-friendly text.

Television and Political Advertising Frank Biocca, 2014-02-04 This volume represents one of the first major scholarly efforts to unravel the psychological and symbolic processing of political advertising. Utilizing survey, experimental, qualitative, and semiotic methodologies to study this phenomenon, the contributors to Television and Political Advertising trace how political ads help to interpret the psychological reality of the presidential campaign in the minds of millions of voters. A product of the National Political Advertising Research Project, this interdisciplinary effort is valuable to researchers in advertising, communication, and consumer psychology since it helps define future work on the relationship between television politics and the mind of the voter. This volume, Television and Political Advertising: Signs, Codes, and Images, is the second of two and covers such areas as Generating Meaning in the Pursuit of Power, Analyses of the Meaning of Political Ads, The Campaign Documentary as an Ad, and Regulating Signs and Images.
