

Revelation

Prologue

In the revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to show his servants what must soon take place. He made it known by sending his angel to his servant John, who testifies to everything he saw—that is, the word of God and the testimony of Jesus Christ. ¹Beloved is the one who reads the words of the prophecy, and blessed are those who hear and take to heart what is written in it, because the time is near.

Greetings and Doxology

“John,

To the seven churches in the province of Asia:

was speaking to me. And when I turned I saw seven golden lampstands, ²and among the lampstands was someone “like the Son of man,” ³dressed in a robe reaching down to his feet and with a golden sash around his chest. ⁴His head and hair were white like wool, as white as snow, and his eyes were like blazing fire. ⁵His feet were like bronze glowing in a furnace, and his voice was like the sound of rushing water. ⁶In his right hand he held seven stars, and out of his mouth came a sharp, double-edged sword. His face was brilliant as the sun.

When I saw him, I fell at his feet as though dead. Then he put his right hand on me and said, “Do not be afraid; I am the one in your favor. You hate me and the Nicolaitans, which I

“He who has an ear, what the Spirit says to him. To him who overcomes, right to eat from the tree is in the paradise of God.”

To the Church in Smyrna

⁷To the angel of the church in Smyrna:

These are the words of the First and the Last, who came to life again. “I know your afflictions and your poverty—rich? I know the slanderers who say they are Jews and are not, and are a synagogue of Satan. I am afraid of what you are about to suffer. I tell you, the devil will put you in prison to test you, and you will suffer persecution for ten days. But you will give up your lives for my sake. I will give you the crown of life.”

“He who has an ear, what the Spirit says to him. To him who overcomes will I give the right to eat from the tree of life.”

New Revelation 1918

Sir Arthur Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

New Revelation 1918:

The New Revelation Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, 2010-01-02 Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was one of Britain's most celebrated writers with his invention of the ultimate detective Sherlock Holmes completely altering the crime fiction genre of the late 19th century. As well as this he was a pioneering sportsman a doctor of medicine and champion of the underdog helping to free two men who were unjustly imprisoned. Of most importance to the man himself however was his belief in life after death and the spreading of the vital message. He received his degree in medicine from the University of Edinburgh in 1881 and by this time had already begun investigating Spiritualism and had begun attending seances a fact that rebuffs the more common idea that he found Spiritualism after his son Kingsley died in 1918. In fact by that time not only had he studied Spiritualism for almost 30 years he had declared the fact and spoken publicly about his beliefs. His first book on the afterlife The New Revelation was published in March 1918 some months before Kingsley's death. By now World War One was raging and peoples thoughts were on the dead and dying and Doyle himself is quoted as saying I might have drifted on my whole life as a psychical researcher but the War came and it brought earnestness into all our souls and made us look more closely at our own beliefs and reassess our values. In 1919 Doyle wrote The Vital Message where he shares his thoughts on Skepticism Religion Psychic Phenomena and Jesus. Doyle saw Jesus as highest of spiritual beings and writes in The Vital Message Spirits have their individuality of view and some carry over strong earthly prepossessions which they do not easily shed but reading many authentic spirit communications one finds that the idea of redemption is hardly ever spoken of while that of example and influence is forever insisted upon. In them Christ is the highest spirit known the Son of God as we all are but nearer to God and therefore in a more particular sense His son

The New Revelation Arthur Conan Doyle, 2022-11-29 The bestselling author of the Sherlock Holmes mysteries delves into the roots of his Spiritualist beliefs. After finishing his medical education in 1882 Arthur Conan Doyle considered himself a staunch materialist in regards to our personal destiny. But his subsequent research into Spiritualism led to his amazement that a great number of people whose names were foremost in science believed that the spirit was independent of the body and could survive it. Then as the New York Times describes The deaths of his oldest son Kingsley in 1918 his brother the following year and two nephews shortly after the war led him to embrace Spiritualism with all his heart convinced it was a New Revelation delivered by God to console the bereaved. This treatise is a summation of Doyle's research and views from his first forays into Spiritualism through mediums seances and his membership in the Psychical Research Society. He explores communication through automatic writing dictated by the dead trance utterances and direct voices. Also included are chapters on what has been proven to happen after death and the underpinnings of psychic law in Christianity. Doyle concludes with the assertion that divine sources have given to us a new revelation which alters the whole aspect of death and the fate of humanity. And it is not a revelation to be ignored
